Allies Warn Italy That Terrible Aerial Offensive To Be Resumed

Heavy Sea Offensive

Allied Warships Shell Italo Mainland Airfields, Three Islands Surrender

By VIRGIL PINKLEY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, July 31—A mounting air and sea offensive that struck faltering Italy within 11 miles of Rome and sent surface craft far up the mainland coast developed today as Allied forces scored steady gains driving Axis troops toward a death-trap in Sicily.

Three small Italian islands off the Sicilian west coast surrendered unconditionally to American troops.

Headquarters announcements revealed a new bombardment aimed at airfields on the mainland near Locri under the toe of the Italian boot, a raid by Mitchell bombers on the Practica di Mare airdrome only 11 miles southeast of the capital, and thrusts by American P-T boats that carried into the Gulf of Eufemia, more than 100 miles up the Italian coast above the straits of Messina.

With surface vessels slipping within three and four miles of both the Sicilian and Italian mainlands and raiding straight through the straits, the Axis troops falling back in Sicily appeared likely to be caught in an unbreakable Allied net as they were in Tunisia.

Allied planes enjoying mastery of the skies met strong opposition only in sweeps over Sardinia, and there 21 of the Friday toll of 26 enemy planes were shot down by War Hawks. Additional planes, including big transports, were destroyed on the airfield near Rome. One six-engined transport was

Edmonton Infantrymen Fight Ghoulish Battle In Cemetery at Agira

By WILLIAM A. WILSON

WITH CANADIANS, CENTRAL FRONT, SICILY, July 28.—(Delayed)—A night battle among the white marble vaults of Agira cemetery where soldiers of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment routed a force preceded the capture of Agira.

The cemetery was one of two strongpoints that had to be cleaned out to open the way into Agira. The Germans had placed mortars and machine guns among the tombs.

Infantrymen under Major W. G. Bury of Edmonton climbed the cemetery walls under raking enemy machine-gun fire and went on to kill all the defenders except 20 who were captured, and a small number who fled.

The town fell at 3.15 p.m. today after a brief street fight in which enemy riflemen and machine-guns were mopped up. British units under Canadian command moved up from the south to trap the German remnants by cutting the narrow road running north. Most of the enemy troops—Panzer Grenadiers and fresh forces from the 29th motorized division—either were killed or captured.

FEW GUNS FIRE

A few German guns north and south of the town still were firing but Major H. P. (Budge) Bell-Irving, of Vancouver, whose Seaforth Highlanders actually paved the way for Agira's fall by a six-mile push yesterday, said they were "Getting a bit annoying—someone'll have to clean them out."

The Princess Pats, who first entered the town, were greeted with cheers. One group that ran into mortar fire was invited into the safety of homes.

Bell-Irving, who said his men had to "Fight like hell for two days with no sleep and little food" in the drive, didn't show a sign of fear anywhere.

"We've proved we're complete master of the Hun and these were

"Pool" Exhausted

Army Call-Up In New Groups Expected Soon

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, July 31—(CP)—With the available pool of men in age groups now eligible for compulsory service almost exhausted, early extension of the call-up to new groups is expected.

Officially there has been no formal indication that the mobilization regulations are to be extended but it is known that the men now subject to call can not be expected much longer to fill army requisitions from the defence department.

Proclamations so far issued under the mobilization regulations apply to single men and childless widowers born in the years 1902 to 1923 and to married men, or widowers with children born in the years 1917 to 1923.

Expectations are that there will be an extension at both ends—a lowering of the eligible age from 19 to 18½ or possibly 18, and inclusion of married men in the 25-to-30 age group. It is not considered likely that the present limit of 40 years for single men will be changed.

During the last three-month period, it is understood, the army asked for something over 40,000 men. Selective service came within 900 of meeting the requisition but since the pool is steadily being exhausted, it will become increasingly difficult to attain such objectives unless new groups of men are made available.

Ciano Resigns Vatican Post

LONDON, July 31.—(CP)—The Rome radio said today Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, had resigned as Italian ambassador to the Vatican.

Ciano was accredited to the Holy See last Feb. 7 after six years as Italy's foreign minister, a post which he had lost a few days earlier when Mussolini made a series of cabinet shifts.

Handsome in a swarthy way and 39 years old, Ciano is the husband of Mussolini's blonde daughter, Edda, who has shared with him the safety of Vatican City quarters the last five months.

GERMANS CALL CANUCK TROOPS "RED DEVILS"

By ROSS MUNRO

NISSORIA, Sicily, July 27.—(Delayed)—(CP)—The Germans now are calling the Canadian 1st Division troops fighting in Sicily "The Red Patch Devils." The battle patch worn by the Canadian troops here is a bright red rectangle carried near the shoulder.

One prisoner told a Canadian officer today: "We see the Red Devils coming and we fire our mortars hard. But the red patches just keep running through the fire.

"I can't understand it. Other troops we fought lay down and took shelter when the mortars fired right on top of them. The red patches are devils. They keep on coming."

Fresh Fruits To Come Under Price Ceiling

OTTAWA, July 31.—(CP)—The Prices Board announced last night that peaches, plums and pears will be put under "definite" price ceilings when they come on the market and that steps will be taken to ensure that "some portion" of the crop is canned.

The announcement said the action was being taken because of an "acute" shortage of fresh fruits and "correspondingly high retail prices."

The board said it also is considering controlling the price of apples and is planning during the periods of shorter supply in winter and spring to put a ceiling on storage root crops such as carrots, beets, turnips, parsnips and cabbage. This action will be taken at "an appropriate time."

"AMPLE" VEGETABLES

Discussing vegetables generally, the board said that with Canadian-grown vegetables coming on the market and victory gardens being harvested, the supply of fresh vegetables is expected to be "ample." Prices are dropping "fairly rapidly," and the immediate outlook from the consumer's point of view, is "greatly improved."

Of the fruits being placed under the ceiling, the board said:

"Prices will be considerably higher than last year because it

Hockey Star Sentenced to 4-Year Term

DETROIT, July 31.—(AP)—James V. Orlando, Detroit Red Wing hockey player, was convicted by a federal court jury late yesterday of violating the selective service act, and was senteneced to four years in prison and fined $2,000.

Judge Edward J. Moinet pronounced sentence immediately after the jury of nine women and three men reported it had found the star defenceman, whose home is at Montreal, guilty on two counts of the indictment against him. Orlando was sentenced to four years on each count, but the sentences will run concurrently.

The jury deliberated less than three hours.

John R. Watkins, Orlando's attorney, indicated he would appeal the conviction, and Orlando's bond of $2,000 wsa continued pending a hearing Monday.

The two counts on which the 27-year-old athlete was convicted had

U.F.A. Convention Set For Calgary

CALGARY, July 31.—(CP)—The 1944 convention of the United Farmers of Alberta will be held in Calgary, January 18 to 21, inclusive, it was announced today by Robert Gardiner, president of the organization.

This will be the 35th annual convention of the U.F.A. The 1943 annual gathering was cancelled following a request by the Federal government that conventions, wherever possible, be discontinued.

Because of the democratic set-up of the farm body, it was considered necessary to hold the convention next year, and the decision was made at a recent meeting of the executive after considering many requests from locals scattered throughout the province for its continuance.

Big Air Fleet Hits Ruhr City

By WALTER LOGAN
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, July 31.—A big British and Canadian air fleet dropped at least 1,500 tons of bombs on the Ruhr valley machine tool centre of Remscheid last night and other bombers carried the greatest air offensive of all times into its second week with daylight raids on Hitler's European fortress.

The Allied air command apparently has crossed Hamburg off its target list as virtually destroyed after eight raids in 120 hours, the most concentrated bombing assault ever made on a modern city. The eighth raid was revealed belatedly to have been made by swift, Mosquito bembers Wednesday night.

Rounding out a week in which British and American bombers dropped some 15,400 tons of explosives on western Europe, the R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. combination sent a heavy force of four-engined Stirlings, Lancasters and Halifaxes against Remscheid in a saturation raid that left widespread destruction in its wake.

ADMIT DAMAGE HEAVY

A German broadcast admitted serious destruction and fire damage. Sixty Allied planes, most of them four-engined, have been shot down in the past 24 hours, the broadcast said.

Only 15 bombers were lost in the Remscheid attack, the air ministry said.

Hardly had the night raiders returned to their bases than daylight bombers and fighters roared out across the English south-east coast to carry the almost non-stop offensive into its second week. One particularly large formation of bombers disappeared over the English channel in the direction of Boulogne.

With a night and a day still to go, the Allies already have dropped perhaps 23,500 tons of bombs on war factories, shipyards, airfields and railway targets in Germany and occupied western Europe this month, some 4,500 tons more than during June, the previous record month.

Last night's raid on Remscheid, carried out in clear weather that enabled the bombers to pin-point their targets, was the first announced on that southern Ruhr city though it may have been hit previously in attacks whose targets were reported only as in the Ruhr.

USE "SUPER" BOMBS

Super block-busters of four tons, plus thousands of other bombs, were dropped on the Alexanderwerke, which makes special machine tools for motors and small arms and employs 3,000 workers, and 25 other factories, some of them railway and freight shops. The Alexanderwerke alone covers 75 acres.

Stiffened Nazi Resistance Slows Red Drive on Orel

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW, July 31.—Stiffened German resistance, marked by counter-attacks in which up to 3,000 troops and 40 tanks assaulted a single Soviet position, slowed but failed to halt converging Russian columns at the gates of Orel today.

The Germans were counter-attacking on some sectors as many as four times in 24 hours and the army organ Red Star reported they had brought up big reinforcements in a final desperate effort to save Orel, exposed hinge of the southern and central fronts.

Despite growing opposition, Red armies advancing on the bastion from the north, east and south yesterday hammered out gains of two and a half to five miles and overran 20 more towns and villages. Nearly 4,000 enemy officers and men were killed.

WIDEN BRIIDGEHEAD

South of Orel, Russian forces entrenched on the west bank of a strategic river widened their bridgehead in a bitter battle that cost the enemy more than 2,000 dead, as well as 21 tanks and 31 guns.

German troops withdrawn from forward positions below Orel several days ago now were established in more favorable defence positions, which they were using as bases for counter-attacks.

A German infantry regiment of 3,000 men, strongly supported by tanks and planes, exhausted itself in a futile counter-attack north of Orel, then was forced to yield a strongly fortified defence position when the Russians suddenly attacked. Eight hundred German dead and nine tanks were left on the battlefield.

Italians Fear German Revenge if Surrender Terms Are Accepted

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, July 31.—(AP)—The Allied high command radioed a stern warning to the Italian people today that the terrible aerial offensive against Italy would be resumed immediately.

"The breathing space" is ended, the Allied command said. Responsibility for the resumption of the air onslaught was laid at the door of the new Badoglio government for temporizing and giving the Germans time to strengthen their positions in Italy.

The first broadcast from the powerful United Nations radio station here was scheduled to be followed by others from London and Washington.

The message warned the Italians to remain clear of railways, factories, depots, German military barracks and all other military objectives.

"The blood of every Italian struck will be on the head of the men in Rome who, in Italy's hour of decision, temporized instead of acting for honor, peace and freedom," it said.

MADRID, July 31.—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio of Italy has established direct contact with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower through representatives sent by airplane to North Africa, reports from France said today. The reports said that the delegates sent to the Allied commander-in-chief in North Africa were empowered to deal on Italy's future status in the war. They were sent by a special Italian plane, the French reports added.

ANKARA, Turkey, July 30—(Delayed)—(AP)—A neutral source in contact with both the Axis and Allies said today that Italians had not accepted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's surrender terms because Germany has threatened revenge.

This source, who can not further be identified, said the threat was delivered in talks between the Italian ambassador, Raffaele Guariglia, and the German am-

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, July 31.—Rocky Mountain House and district on Friday, between 7 and 8 p.m., experienced the worst hail storm in its history. For more than half an hour, hail fell, some stones the size of hens' eggs.

Gardens and fields were flattened. Reports from outside could not be verified, but indicated crops between Rocky and Hespero, 25 miles east, were almost totally destroyed. In town dozens of windows were broken in houses and business places. The Ross Garage, where roof repairs were going on, had its counter, showcase, cash register and stock room badly flooded. Mount View hotel had four windows broken, the Mountaineer newspaper office had four windows and a big door glass broken.

U.S. Warships Shell Defences on Kiska

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—American light warships bombarded Japanese defences on Kiska Island Friday, the navy department reported today following a bombing mission by a single American plane Thursday.

The surface vessels, which may have been either destroyers or light cruisers, poured shells into the enemy's main camp area as well as the Gertrude Cove section.

These were July's 61st air attack and the month's eighth surface bombardment directed against Kiska.

Calgary Paper Reported Sold For $300,000

CALGARY, July 31.—The Calgary Albertan newspaper has been sold to a financial group represented by H. R. Milner, K.C., Edmonton, and W. H. McLaws, K.C., Calgary, according to reliable sources today.

The property is said to have been sold by Gordon Bell, Vancouver, representing the estate of the late George M. Bell, Calgary, and subject to the claims held by The Royal Bank of Canada.

TAKE OVER MONDAY

The total price is reported to be $300,000, including liabilities. Max Bell, son of the late George M. Bell, is said to be president and managing director of the new set-up which takes over Monday, Aug. 2.

Rumors of the impending sale have been current for months, but the deal was actually closed this week, according to information from reliable sources here.

Official announcement is expected to be made by Max Bell, outlining the policy of the new management, Monday.

The Calgary Albertan was reported sold by the late George M. Bell to a group of Social Crediters some years ago for $700,000, who paid $100,000 cash but failed to complete the purchase, and the newspaper reverted back to Mr. Bell and was held by him until his death. The estate carried on the newspaper under the management of Harold Bell, brother of the late George M. Bell, until the sale to the new group this week.

New Wheat Quota 3 Bush. Per Acre

OTTAWA, July 31—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon announced last night that the Canadian Wheat board has set initial wheat quotas for the 1943-44 crop year at three bushels per authorized acre, against the initial 5-bushel quota established for 1942-43.

He said these quotas would apply at stations where there was sufficient space to complete delivery of the final 1942-43 quota of 15 bushels.

Mr. MacKinnon said the initial quotas were lower than last year because of the "present congestion" in country elevators, and noted that the government was making arrangements to help elevator companies to undertake advances to farmers against farm-stored wheat deliverable under the 1943-44 quotas.

Alberta Ack-Ack Gunners 'Knock Tar' Out of Nazis

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS IN CENTRAL SICILY, July 28.—(Delayed)—(CP)—A Canadian light anti-aircraft unit commanded by a Lieutenant-Colonel from a Calgary regiment knocked the tar out of a squadron of 12 Messerschmitts strafing the roads and camps in this sector.

One fighter was hit dead on with a Bofors shell and crashed. Two others went off trailing smoke, and probably crashed in the mountains, and two more were hit and damaged.

The same regiment was in action on the beaches after the initial landing in Sicily and the unit's total score on the island is nine planes destroyed and about the same number damaged. The unit's score against pillboxes also is high. Its gunners blasted enemy machine-gun posts with flak shells in the battle for Valguarnera which fell July 19.

SAW ATTACK BEGIN

I saw the raiders begin their attack this morning.

They were flying just over the tree tops. But the Canadian ack-ack guns were in action. A troop commanded by Capt. Jimmy Archibald of St. John's Nfld., let them have a whole clip of Bofors shells. It was this troop which wrecked the squadron.

The battery in which this troop is included is commanded by Maj. Stan McKay of Calgary.

Maj. W. G. Ledingham of Calgary is second in command.

The regiment was stationed on the south coast of England for a number of months and destroyed about a dozen German hit-and-run raiders there.

tower was smashed. Travellers stranded here trying to get in touch with their families in the city, found phone wires between here and Red Deer down.

LINES DAMAGED

Power lines were slightly damaged, and lights were out for an hour. With no rural phones it will be a day or two before the full extent of the damage of the storm is known. Buildings with flat roofs were badly damaged and leaking. Crops in the district were generally heavy and making rapid headway. Haying was in full swing and there will be a heavy loss as much of the cut crop was beaten into the ground. Wild fruit crop promised to be excellent but will be a total loss where the hail hit.

Sidewalks on treed streets were covered with several inches of leaves and twigs. Hail was lying in ditches and beside buildings Saturday morning. The storm covered a wide area, to Caroline south 25 miles, north 15 miles, as far as Settlement, and west to Horburg 20 miles. There is not enough glass in town to replace windows broken, and many will have to be boarded up until glass comes in. Many young chickens and turkeys on farms of the edge of town were killed by the huge hail stones.

Driver Blamed In Fatal Crash

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LACOMBE, July 31.—Whyland Anderson, who is still undergoing treatment in an Edmonton hospital, was held responsible for an accident which caused the death of Caroline Sipes, 18, of Vancouver, here on June 16, by a coroner's jury here yesterday. Miss Sipes was instantly killed when the motorcycle driven by Anderson and on which Miss Sipes was riding crashed into the side of the north-bound C.P.R. Chinook about a mile south of Lacombe. Verdict of the jury was: "We, the coroner's jury, are agreed that Caroline Sipes came to her death owing to an accident caused by negligent driving of a motorcycle by Whyland Anderson."

Evidence given at the inquest was that the train, travelling between 50 and 55 miles an hour, was struck by the motorcycle at a crossing and that the motor vehicle had kept pace with the train for a considerable distance before the accident occurred. Members of the train crew and other witnesses testified that the train whistle and bell had both been sounded several times in order to warn the motorcycle driver of his danger.

Coroner Dr. F. D. Locke was in charge of the inquest and Sgt. R. Matheson of the R.C.M.P. interrogated the witnesses.

Fresh Fruits To Come Under Price Ceiling

would not be possible for growers to harvest their greatly-reduced crops unless they can get some compensation for the damage done by the severe winter. But prices will not be permitted to get completely out of hand. The peach crop, for instance, is estimated to be only one-quarter to one-third of what it was last year.

"Placing a ceiling on these fruits does not mean they will be available everywhere. Because of the short crop and heavy consumer demand, plus the difficulty of transporting perishable fruit, rather than run the risk of letting it go bad while being shipped long distances, the board is prepared to allow the crop to be absorbed in regions not remote from the growing point.

OTTAWA, July 31.—(CP)—The Dominion bureau of statistics reported yesterday in a fruit crop report that the first estimates of the 1943 tree fruit and grape crops indicate a "big drop" in total production from last season.

"Although the apple crop in Nova Scotia is 23 per cent larger than that of a year ago, reductions ranging from two per cent in New Brunswick to 29 per cent in British Columbia bring the Canadian total to 3,951,000 barrels, compared with 4,330,900 barrels in 1942," said the bureau.

"The pear crop also is "substantially smaller," estimated at 475,000 bushels compared with 752,900 bushels. The decline occurred in the three producing provinces, Nova Scotia, Ontario and British Columbia.

WITH CANADIANS, CENTRAL FRONT, SICILY, July 25.—(Delayed)—Canadian forces have taken about 8,000 prisoners, including some 300 Germans, and have inflicted on the Nazis alone much greater casualties than they have suffered, Maj. Gen Guy Simonds said today.

He said casualties have not been heavy considering the nature of their operations, the commander said, while the Germans, apparently short on artillery, have had the advantage of excellent positions.

In his first statement on the quality of his men, Simonds said "I think they've come up to scratch and their training is showing results—I got a note from the army commander the other day saying he is pleased with the way they've come through."

Plan to Step-Up Air Recruiting

Stating that a crisis has been reached in the recruiting and training of personnel for aircrew in the R.C.A.F., Squadron Leeader J. C. Hackney, commanding officer at No. 3 recruiting centre, said efforts to secure more recruits will be greatly stepped up in coming weeks.

With the greatest aerial bombardment in history being carried on at an increasingly furious pace any decrease in the flow of aircrew trainees will be disastrous to the grand strategy now being carried out by the Allied high command with astounding success to date, it was pointed out.

Air Force headquarters at Ottawa have of late stressed the necessity for maintaining a greater flow of recruits.

A concerted drive for more crew will start at once, Sqdn. Ldr. Hackney stated Saturday.

to do with submission to his draft board of false letters from Montreal engineering firms alleging that he had been employed by them as a machinist or mechanic in the years 1934-38.

A 2-B draft deferment had been granted the hockey star as an essential worker at the Lincoln Tool and Die Company, a Detroit war plant.

Orlando pleaded that his employers—not he—submitted the letters to his draft board, but that he sought and obtained them only to be used as references in obtaining his job at the Lincoln plant. Representatives of the Canadian firms testified that they could find no record that the hockey player ever had been employed there.

The jury found him not guilty on another count of the indictment charging failure to notify his draft board of a transfer from machine work to office work at the Lincoln company.

Orlando, who held the war plant job in addition to his hockey duties, has been with the Red Wings for six years. Known throughout the league as a "bad man" of the ice because of his rugged, aggressive play, he spent a total of 109 minutes in the penalty box during the 1942-43 season.

Italians Warned to Expect Allied Attack on Mainland

By FRANK BRUTTO

BERNE, July 31.—(AP)—The Italian people heard a new warning last night to prepare for a possible Allied invasion of central Italy, border dispatches said.

The 5th army commander issued a proclamation advising of the danger of an Allied invasion in Latium, Tuscany and Umbria. He announced that asumption of power by the military authorities in this area to suppress rioting did not alter the alert of July 15 declaring a state of emergency in the event of an enemy landing.

Two new classes were called to the colors by the Italian government.

About 2,500,000 refugees were believed to have left the northern cities of Italy, many of them crowding into areas between Milan and the Swiss border. Thousands of Milan residents have left the city to find refuge in less exposed localities.

It was not made clear whether they feared Allied bombings, disorders in the cities, or fighting between the Germans and Italians.

Some factories in northern industrial areas, it was reported, were halted for a half-hour each day while the workers held an arm-folded strike to remind the government of the people's desire for "peace and liberty."

The government meanwhile continued stamping out the remains of Fascism. All former federal secretaries, vice-secretaries, workers delegates and squadristi (the castor oil and club wielders) of the Fascist party were called into the army.

Giraud Appointed French Commander

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALGIERS, July 31.—(AP)—Unification of the French armed forces under Gen. Henri Giraud as commander-in-chief was announced today, together with the appointment of Gen. Charles de Gaulle as permanent president of the newly-formed committee of national defence.

Spurred by the imminent collapse of Italy, the French National Committee of Liberation unified all the fighting forces of the empire under Gen. Giraud and appointed Gen. de Gaulle to head the new committee of national defence.

Gen. Paul de Gentilhomme, veteran de Gaullist military leader, will be appointed to the new office of war minister.

FLIN FLON, Man., July 31.—(CP)—The body of Albert Weger, 30-year-old Flin Flon bachelor, was found by berry-pickers late today at nearby Hapnot Lake, Sask. Weger's throat had been slashed with a straight razor which was found tightly grasped in his hand. Coroner Orson F. Wright said it was a case of suicide.

U.S. Ship Workers Denied Pay Boost

WASHINGTON, July 31—(AP)—The War Labor Board yesterday denied a general wage increase to more than 1,000,000 employees of 188 shipyards throughout the United States. The board declared that no general increases could be granted under its wage stabilization policies. The War Labor Board called, however, for a review of the wage rate structure and job classifications in the industry.

THE ARMY'S FLYING WING!

WHEN AN INFANTRY ADVANCE is held up by an enemy "hot spot," the Commanding Officer signals for the shock troops—the hard-riding, sharp-shooting men of the Carrier Sections. Zooming up in speedy, armoured Universal Carriers the boys in black battle dress throw themselves and their weapons into action with the wild abandon of rodeo riders—but with deadly precision and split-second teamwork.

A Carrier Section (three carriers, nine men and a Section Commander) can concentrate firepower equal to that of an entire infantry platoon on an enemy position. On today's fluid battle lines, the Carriers are star performers. They deliver a knockout blow in one place and—before the enemy knows what hit him—are striking again far down the line.

Each man in the Carrier Troops is an accomplished driver or radio operator; each is a dead shot with rifle, Bren gun, anti-tank rifle or 2-inch mortar which are standard equipment. Useful also for laying smoke screens to cover troop movements, the Universal Carriers are often called upon to transport men and supplies over rough-and-tumble terrain which would stop a less powerful or sure-footed vehicle.

Canada can expect great things from the fast, fearless soldiers in the Carrier Section—the Army's flying wing!

One of more than 50 types of battle vehicles made and tested by Ford of Canada's craftsmen, the Universal Carrier is a versatile piece of equipment; has already figured in successful Commando raids and important United Nations advances.

"Our fighting men are trained and ready to hit the enemy with everything they've got. Our job is to see they have more than enough first-rate battle equipment—and the job won't be finished until our enemy has 'unconditionally surrendered'."

Italians Fear Nazi Revenge For Surrender

Von Papen tempered the threat with the promise that if the Italian cabinet resisted public pressure for capitulation and continued to fight, Germany would take Italy's badly-battered position into consideration in the disposition of troops, even to the point of revising the whole defence plan for Axis-held Europe, it was reported.

By ROGER GREENE

All German civilians living in Italy were officially advised to leave the strife-torn kingdom today, and electric tension prevailed in London as Prime Minister Churchill ordered cabinet members and heads of the fighting services to "stand by" for a possible week-end emergency.

Meanwhile, patriot armies were on the march in the Balkans. The Yugoslav government announced in London that the 5th and 6th Brigades of Slovene irregulars, who have been fighting inside Italian territory, had broken through Italian lines and reached the Udine region of northern Italy. German troops guarding the Trieste gateway to northern Italy were previously reported to have taken strong positions at Udine.

Developments in the Italian crisis broke with lightning rapidity:

1—A Reuters news agency dispatch said German troops have begun to disarm Italian troops in the neighborhood of Larissa in Greece.

2—Swiss-Italian frontier reports said the commander of the Italian 5th Army had issued a warning of a possible Allied invasion of Tuscanny, Umbria and Latiu provinces in north-central Italy.

FIRE ON TROOPS

3—D.N.B., the German news agency, said rioters in Milan, birthplace of Mussolini's outlawed Fascist party, were firing on German and Italian troops.

4—The Berlin radio said German occupation troops had been removed from many Greek cities because they were needed elsewhere.

5—In Italy, Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio urged the peace-clamoring Italian people to be patient, declaring in a broadcast:

"Italy cannot now get out of the war honestly and safely without the exercise of great wisdom and caution. This requires time."

Meanwhile, Allied armies tightened their squeeze on Axis forces in the northeast "coffin corner" of Sicily. For the first time, more German prisoners were being captured than Italians.

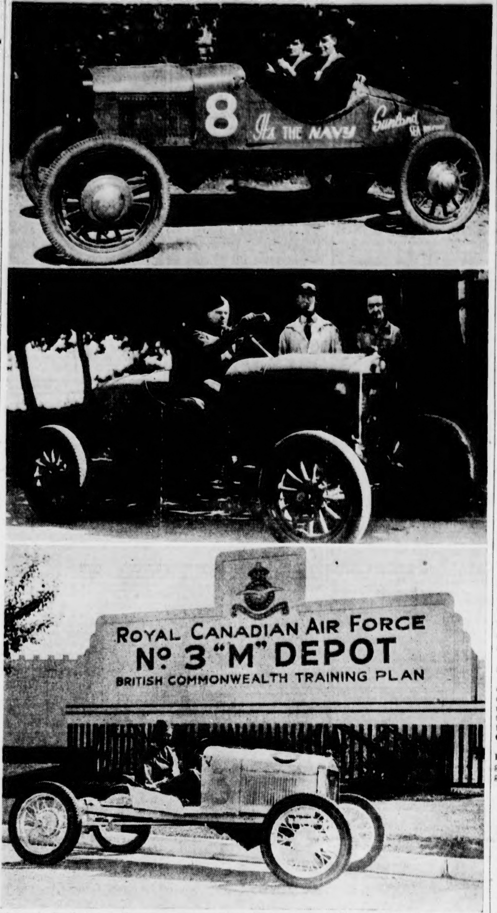
They're Ready to Go in Big Races



Keen rivalry between the army, navy, and air force entries in Monday's Model "T" derby is mounting higher as the great race draws near. Pictured above are the armed service entries, ready to burn up the track with every ounce of power their ancient engines can muster. Top shows the navy's iron charger, with sailors William Krause and Jim Bideson "aboard". In the race, Dixie Walker will drive this speedster. The army's hopes are pinned to the flashy entrant in the centre. It has a specially-designed open air engine room, plainly shown. In the driver's seat is Pte. Ralph Davis, although Sgt. Webb, Crow's Nest Pass, who is stationed with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps here, will drive in the race. Behind the car are two mechanics entrusted with the racer's locomotion—Cpl. S. McGibbon, left, and Sgt. Jim MacDonald, right. Dark horse in the race is the white R.C.A.F. entry, seen in the bottom picture with Sgt. Ewart behind the wheel. Sgt. Ewart, stationed at No. 3 "M" depot, has amazed the whole personnel of the "M" Depot by the speed and racket he coaxes out of his Ford. Unofficial clockers have timed Sgt. Ewart at 39.6789 m.p.h.

good Huns," he said. "He can't stand close fighting and he runs away screaming."

The Edmonton lads completed the consolidation of their area early this morning when a patrol under Lieut. C. F. Swan of Edmonton cut the road northwards and did not return until late this afternoon after observing enemy movements and harassing transport.

WIPE OUT FORCE

One detachment of the Edmontons, crossing high ground, reached a cliff and found a group of Germans resting below. They lined up their weapons carefully and suddenly opened fire, wiping out the enemy force.

Another patrol of the Edmontons under Major W. T. Cromb, an Edmonton school teacher, encountered a concentration of German tanks, knocking out four and capturing a quartermasters' lorry from which they fed themselves. This patrol started out under Sergeant Jim Hammel of Edmonton and later was reinforced.

Corp. R. W. Ellenwood, who is 42 carried out a one-man expedition through the hills and valleys to an outpost where some troops were almost cut off and returned with important information for Lt. Col. J. C. Jefferson.

Describing the spirited action of the Seaforths, Major Bell-Irving praised the timely arrival of regimental reinforcements, which he sent around the German flank.

"They came up just at the right moment," he said, "because by 7:15 my men were tired and we had chased the whole of the enemy right off their hill position."

TAKE PRISONERS

The Seaforths took a number of Germans prisoners during the night who had been terrified by the barrage, said Bell-Irving, adding that the Canadians had now become used to hte terrific shellfire and took it as part of the show.

"They're not afraid and the Hun is," he said grimly.

Bell-Irving extolled the courage of one of his men, Corp. Fred Terry of Vancouver who led three men under hot machine gun fire to capture a pillbox. They knocked out the machine gun and seized two Germans.

In the battle for the hill top, Bell-Irving's men used up most of their grenades but didn't get a chance to get in any bayonet work, he said.

Bell-Irving comes from a family which had two generations fighting in this war after setting up a fine record in the last. I learned the story of his calm and aggressive leadership from some of his men. They said he showed no fear whatever and during heavy enemy shellfire lay on the grass in an exposed position, criticizing the accuracy and quality of the German guns.

Once, when there were heavy explosions nearby, he shouted reassuringly: "He's trying to get us now with his mortars, but he won't hit us. He's sending them all over our heads."

A Seaforth soldier, Private Philip Freeman of Vancouver said the German prisoners coming in admit they are scared.

"I don't mind admitting we are scared of the German mortars, but they're more scared than we are," he said. "It's nerve wracking because even when you're resting there's always shells dropping around."

STALKS PATROL

Bell-Irving's force went through Nissoria two nights ago as an advance guard and outside the town met an engineer lieutenant who reported an enemy patrol ahead. This Bell-Irving cut off by sending a detachment around the flank and discovered that the enemy patrol included two tanks.

The Seaforths attacked them with grenades and Bell-Irving then led his men along narrow, twisting track to avoid obeing isolated by enemy forces.

Bell-Irving said his first plan was to work north and hide in the hills.

"But at daylight," he said, "we found we had still a long stretch of open country road ahead, so we shifted south and chose a high point which seemed a useful thing to hold. We were in the middle of the Germans and didn't quite know what was going to happen.

"A German mortar and tank detachment fired on us from the heights and we engaged them," he said. "We knocked out a machine gun and turned our mortars on the tanks. One withdrew and another was towed out."

Later the Seaforth detachment made contact with supporting forces.

sent down. Total Allied loss for the day was one plane, a communique said.

Additional progress by land forces in Sicily was revealed in the communique. The Eighth Army below Catania inflicted heavy casualties on German forces and the Americans captured an additional 941 prisoners in new advances.

FIRST TO SURRENDER

The islands, comprising the Aegades group, are Favignana, Levanzo and Marettimo. They were the first to surrender since the fall of the stepping stones toward the North Africa shore before the invasion of Sicily.

No details of the surrender of the islands were given and no attacks had been reported on them. They lie off the end of Sicily now occupied by American troops and the largest, Favignana, is only six miles long. Levanzo is approximately four miles long and Marettimo is slightly smaller.

The warships attacked the mainland the night of July 28-29 about 75 miles southwest of the Crotone area which was shelled on July 29.

EIGHT BRITISH UNITS

Eight units from British light naval forces edged up the Sicilian east coast north of Mt. Etna to bombard railways near Giagargina feeding the German armies facing British forces below Catania. The range was so close that machine guns were leveled against them. The shells set fires in stations, trains and storehouses. The ships suffered no damage.

The delayed reports of the naval action filtered in through front advices covering operations the last five days and included a pentration by British forces so close to Reggio Calabria, Italian ferry base across the straits, that shore batteries fired on the vessels but without any effect.

Dear __________

Edmonton's population is over the 100,000-mark to stay, we heard this week, when figures of the 1943 census were released. The 1943 population mark, as at June, is 105,563, and is 8,811 higher than the figure for 1942. The 105,563 is exclusive of many thousands of Canadian and American soldiers and airmen stationed in Edmonton, so the total figure would be much higher than that, probably in the neighborhood of 130,000. Here are the figures that show how Edmonton has grown since the war began: 1939, 90,419; 1940, 91,723; 1941, 93,817; 1942, 96,725, and 1943, 105,563. These figures were released by Thomas Walker, city assessor.

Rise and fall of the Roman "empire," Fascist style, was the chief item of discussion today, wherever citizens gathered. The papers devoted much space to Mussolini's meteoric rise and downfall, and capitals of the world speculated on Italy's next step. Badoglio, new premier, took the spotlight as everyone awaited his announcements as to Italy's future course in the war.

Stocks of canned fruits and vegetables were "frozen" by the Dominion government today, in an effort to build up ample supplies for next winter. Wholesalers and canners were ordered to withhold from the retail market, current pack of canned fruit and vegetables, and the remainder of the 1942 pack. Fresh fruits and vegetables are to take the place of canned foods on our tables until the fall, it was said. There wasn't much rush to grocery stores to stock up before stocks were sold out, but some complaints were heard that while canned vegetables and fruits were under price ceilings, fresh produce was not.

Lt.-Col. Frank N. Nightingale, operations officer for the Alaskan Wing of the United States Army Air Force Transport Command, was killed when his single-motored plane crashed at Cooking Lake on Saturday. Lt.-Col. Nitghtingale was only 34, and same to Edmonton from Florida last winter. A board of U.S. Army officials will investigate causes of the crash.

City building permits took a $1,000,000 jump when Wartime Housing Limited, a crown company, took out a blanket permit to cover 250 houses to be built here. Work on the new homes has already started, and it is expected that the first will be ready for occupancy at the end of this month. All the new building for the crown company will be done in Norwood, between 93 and 87 streets, and 112 and 118 avenues, and in Westwood, between 101 and 103 streets, and 119 and 121 avenues.

Eleventh annual Rose Show at the Capitol theatre opened today, and is a huge success. Hundreds of the most beautiful roses you ever saw went on display in the Capitol's lobby. Rain and sunshine of the past few weeks provided just the right growing weather for the blooms, rose fanciers say.

July 27

Frederick Delano, uncle of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, passed through the city again today, on his way back to Washington after a trip to the northland. Mr. Delano toured United States war jobs in British Columbia, Alaska, the Yukon, Northwest Territories and Alberta. He said his trip was "strenuous," but had little other comment to add to that.

C. A. Wilson, 11025 123 street, was winner of the Capitol Rose Show. Token of the win was The Edmonton Bulletin's trophy, which Mr. Wilson will keep for a year, besides receiving a replica cup for permanent possession. It was Mr. Wilson's first major win, although two years ago he took first prize in the novice class at the Rose Show.

Transportation, and a small loan will be given men who need them in taking employment in wood-cutting, to relieve an impending shortage of the fuel this winter, William Carnill, manager of National Selective Service, announced in Edmonton. He said National Selective Service now has the power to direct men on less important work to give their employers notice, and go wood-cutting.

Premier Ernest Manning opened the Lloydminster Fair today. It was the 36th annual exhibition in that district, and was said to be the "best yet."

Army and Navy Pats strengthened their lead on the Senior Girls' Fastball League's first place Monday night, when they shut out Aircraft Repair 9-0, on three-hit pitching of Beryl Westbrook in the second game of a double-header played at Kingsway Park. In the first game, C.W.A.C. beat Bomberettes 5-4.

Hon. John Hart, premier of British Columbia, arrived in Edmonton Wednesday to confer with Major-General W. W. Foster, D.S.O., special commissioner for the Canadian government on northwest war projects. Mr. Hart said his government was surveying three possible routes for a $6,000,000 link between the Alaska Highway and the British Columbia highway system. One route, he said, was from Finlay Forks, B.C., a second through Pine Pass, and a third through Monkman Pass.

Revenues paid into the city's treasury for taxes and by civic utilities for the first six months of 1943 amounted to $534,391, compared with $519,201 for the same period last year, it was announced by A. A. Campbell, city comptroller. The increase over last year's income was $15,189. Mr. Campbell said brightest spot in the revenue picture was the showing of the street railway system, where there was a surplus of $16,224 this year, compared with a deficit of $24,872 for the same period last year.

United States Army authorities have given assurances that American military police will exercise the same care in dealing with law infractions as is expected of members of the Edmonton city police force, Mayor John Fry said after a conference with an official of the United States Army. The conference was held as a result of a shooting incident last Thursday night, when an American M.P. fired in the air to halt a man escaping after being questioned for tampering with an army "jeep."

Marjorie Bittner, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bittner of Looma, was accidentally drowned Tuesday in a ditch at the home of Gustav Bittner, it was reported to the R.C.M.P. authorities today. The little tot apparently wandered away from other children she was playing with, and fell into water in a deep ditch.

Yanks outhit Arrows 6-4 in a Senior League ball game at Renfrew Park last night. Morris Hawkey failed to register his seventh win as the Yanks jumped him for five runs and seven hits in 6 1-3 innings, and sailed right on to mark up the 6-4 victory.

Wage increases awarded by the Alberta Regional War Labor Board to Edmonton hotel employees were held valid at Ottawa by the National War Labor Board, it was learned today. Edmonton hotel operators had appealed the Alberta Board's award, saying increases awarded, from 10 to 60 per cent., were too high. The case affects 17 hotels, employing 200 persons.

Edmonton Sea Cadets are camping this week at Lake Wabamun, and having a real outing. Eighty-five lads from R.C.S.C. "Warrior," the Edmonton Sea Cadet "ship," are at the camp, which is being supervised this year by the Royal Canadian Navy. Three leading seamen from H.M.C.S. "Nonsuch" form the instructional staff, while a number of officers from "Nonsuch" are on a group advising sea cadet officers in matters of routine and training.

Death of Miss Christina K. Blain, a well-known school teacher of Edmonton, was reported today. For a number of years Miss Blain was assistant principal at King Edward school, where she was in full charge of all sports activities among the girls.

A large picture of the late Premier Aberhart is nearing completion, and is to be hung in the Legislative buildings. The painter is N. de Grandmaison, a well-known portrait artist.

It cost $88,239 to clean snow and ice off Edmonton streets in the winter of 1942-43, compared with $18,506 needed the previous winter, the city engineer's department announced today. Now maybe you'll believe us when we talk about the winter we had!

Hornets created new hit and run records for the city last night at Renfrew Park, when they hammered three Yank pitchers for 21 singles, and chalked up a 13-5 win over the senior league leaders. The game was postponed from last Sunday because of weather conditions. Every one of the Hornets was in on the "hit parade", with Mel Ottem leading with four for four, and Doug Stevenson and Dan Hackler coming up with three each.

July 30

T. D. Pattullo, former Liberal premier of British Columbia and senior member of the B.C. house in years of service, was an Edmonton visitor today. Mr. Pattullo was first elected in 1916, and has been a member of the house ever since, and a minister for the whole period except for five years of a Conservative government. He has been on a trip inspecting northern projects.

We were all thrilled to read today that the 1st Battalion Loyal Edmonton Regiment, is in Sicily. A despatch from Ross Munro, ace Canadian Press writer, named several officers of the regiment, and describes hot fighting for the Sicilian town of Leonforte. Munro says two companies of German infantry and five tanks surrounded a section of the Edmontons in the middle of the town—but that's as far as they got. The Edmonton boys held out till reinforcements came, and then helped chase the Hun out of town.

Hornets continued their forward march in the senior baseball league, when they banged out 11 hits to defeat Dodgers 7-2 at Renfrew Park last night. It was third straight triumph for Aircraft Repair, whose margin over Arrows is now a full game and a half. Hornets now stand second in the city senior league, with U.S. Army at the top.

July 31

Residents are all set for a pleasant week-end with the Civic holiday to be celebrated Monday. Owing to war activities the celebration will not be so widespread as usual, but will be featured by sports and other events. Probabilities are for mostly [illegible] weather.

Must hurry. Best of everything until next week.

Edmonton Men Are There

The fighting in Sicily is brought home to people here by the disclosure that the Edmonton Regiment is in the thick of it. The unit is in good company, and of course is making good its right to be in such company. The Canadians and the American troops next in line are credited with having punched a gap in the enemy's defences at the centre; thus opening the way for a push around the north of Mount Etna to pen the Axis forces in a pocket only a third the size of the triangle they are at present holding. It was this break-through which prompted Mr. Patterson to say at Washington that the end of the Sicilian campaign "may be only a matter of days".

That they will be days of hard fighting has to be expected. The German troops there—like those in Tunisia—have evidently been ordered to hold what ground they can as long as they can, regardless of what their Italian comrades may do. But our men are well led, well equipped, and have been well trained. They have also the advantage of knowing that the enemy knows he is fighting where he cannot win—and that counted for something in Tunisia. Whatever comes, the Edmonton Regiment can be counted on to do its part.

V

While Italy "Stews"

It was not for nothing Mr. Churchill had his colleagues called out of bed in the small hours of Friday morning to attend a sunrise cabinet meeting. Nor was there much need to wonder what subject demanded such urgent attention. The crisis in Italy was the only development anywhere likely to occasion the summary call, and nothing short of expectation that capitulation may come any hour would keep the ministers on the alert over the week-end. In the absence of such word from Rouse, General Eisenhower already knows what to do.

If Badoglio has decided to surrender it is to be hoped he will do it soon. The delay he has already indulged in has been bad for Italy, bad for the Allies, and helpful only to Hitler. Prompt action by the new Premier on Sunday would have gained five days in which to bolster Italy against a Nazi invasion from the north, and deprived Nazi forces of the chance they have been given to set up a battle-line somewhere along the Po valley and the fringes of the Italian Alps.

As a military man Badoglio must have known the urgency of speed and the consequences of procrastination. If Italy becomes the scene of prolonged and large scale fighting between Allied and Nazi armies, a share of the hardships thus imposed upon the Italian people will lie at the door of their dallying Premier. If he is done dreaming about waving both the Allies and the Nazis away and wishing Italy off-hand into a neutral zone, the faster he moves now the less Italy will suffer.

Not Under Control

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board is not very hopeful that it can do anything to bring down the "fantastic" prices which are being charged consumers for fresh fruit and vegetables. Rather the contrary. Recognizing that the housewives of the land are "plain mad", the Board says it is "unable to control the situation". For the reasons that these crops are not very good over most of the Dominion, and scarce labor makes the supplies at consuming centres still scarcer than conditions in the fields and orchards would otherwise cause them to be.

There is no ceiling on fruit and vegetable prices. Mainly because, like rationing farmers' home-grown food, it would take an army of officials and cost a huge amount of tax-money to enforce the regulations. It has been left to producers and consumers to set price levels as they usually do by the processes of free marketing, competition being depended upon to keep the levels within reason. Poor yields and lack of hands plus railway congestion have interfered to upset this calculation. Top prices are however to be set for peaches, plums and pears.

What the Board might do is make sure that these are the only factors contributing to the impossible price level prevailing in parts of the country where fruits and early vegetables have to be imported—such as the prairie region. Occasions have been known when neither supply nor cost of delivery set the prices. It would reconcile the public in the importing areas to doing without these things if they were assured that somewhere along the line the "fine Italian hand" of the combinester has not been busy thimble-rigging the price schedule for his own profit. The Board might have its net-work of officials across the country do a little probing of that possibility.

A City That Was

The bombing of Hamburg has broken all records in the tonnage of bombs dropped on a single target; and there is every reason to believe also in the amount of damage done. Never before was such a weight of explosives loosed on any city as has fallen there since Saturday last. It far exceeds the total weight dropped on Britain by the luftwaffe in its three-month blitzkrieg. The initial consignment of 2,300 tons set a new mark for a single raid anywhere, and this figure was beaten five days later.

Hamburg was the greatest seaport on the continent of Europe in peacetime, greatest in the amount of business done through it, in the number of ships arriving and departing, and in the volume of merchandise landed and taken away. In a single year nearly 15,000 ships entered the port, having a combined capacity of more than 17,000,000 tons. Ten years ago the population reached the million mark, and may have been half as much more a week ago.

As a war centre Hamburg was important for the amount and variety of munitions produced there, and equally or more important as a seaport. It was the greatest of Germany's submarine bases, and its location near the western entrance to the Kiel canal gave it peculiar value in this respect.

Pictures and detailed reports are hardly necessary to prove that the Hamburg of today is a sorry sight. Its port facilities have been the specially selected targets of the raiders and they must be in ruins, docks, warehouses, supply depots, submarine building and repair plants. Its munitions factories and storage places elsewhere have no doubt shared the same fate. Hamburg can now be of little use to Hitler, and is the biggest clearing-up and reconstruction job ahead of his salvage corps.

If Signor Mussolini were a dozen men he could not be in all the places the guessers have put him. Elba, Spain, Germany, Switzerland, numberless points in Italy, have been suggested as his probable hiding place. For some reason no one seems to have cited the Vatican as his probable place of refuge. But what could be more likely than that the fallen tyrant should seek sanctuary of the Pope—not from the Allies, who were in no imminent prospect of laying hands on him—but from the Roman mobs he knew would soon be searching for him and would almost certainly kill him if they found him? Against such an appeal the Pope could not turn a deaf ear, nor could any man who loves order and abhors mobbism.

One Dollar a Day for Every Old Age Pensioner

Alberta Should Increase Allowance to the Legal Limit

By HAROLD L. WEIR

In reply to a telegram from the editor of The Edmonton Bulletin, the Hon. J. L. Ilsley sends us this wire:

"Old Age Pensions regulations allow provinces mentioned in regulations to disregard supplemental allowances provided by provincial governments in calculating income for purpose of paying Old Age Pension. Alberta is one of the provinces mentioned in regulations."

Harold L. Weir

The Old Age Pension is made up as follows:

Three-quarters of the pension is paid by the Dominion. One-quarter is paid by the provinces.

Alberta has already added a five-dollar bonus to the pension paid in this province.

The ruling laid down in Mr. Ilsley's telegram means simply this: that there is nothing to prevent Alberta from raising the maximum pension to the limit of $365 per annum fixed by law.

The Government of Alberta should immediately take advantage of that ruling and raise the maximum pension in this province to one dollar per day.

Social-Minded

This is the most social-minded province in Canada. In every respect, Alberta has substantiated that claim.

And yet, even Alberta falls far behind such countries as New Zealand where an adequate pension is immediately payable to every person, at any age, who becomes incapacitated for work. Whether a man is fifteen or fifty, he receives an allowance as soon as he cannot carry on his normal duties.

At the age of sixty his pension may raise his income to $100 a month; he may have up to $2,000 in the bank and own a $2,500 house without having his pension affected.

The payment of a standardized pension, irrespective of means, is fully justified by the fact that the income tax takes care of what might be termed excess payments.

Canada looks for and the Canadian people demand a pension system that will provide at least a $30 a month allowance for every person of sixty years or more regardless of means.

This, of course, is primarily the business of the Dominion Government. But it is the duty of the Government of Alberta, if only for the sake of its own prestige in social security matters, to approximate this ideal as closely as possible within its own borders and in regard to its own citizens.

British Columbia is raising the maximum old age pension to this proposed dollar a day.

If Alberta should do the same, an exchange between the two provinces would be possible so that Alberta citizens living in British Columbia and British Columbia citizens living in Alberta would be able to secure their pensions without that delay and red tape which has so frequently proved intolerable in the past.

Hostile

While the legal onus for social security falls upon the Dominion Government, the moral onus falls the more heavily upon the provinces because Mr. Ilsley, the minister of finance, has shown himself to be hostile to any expenditure of public money for such purposes.

His hostility was sharply manifest when, at the time of his presentation of his budget, he impatiently remarked that he had no time to disarrange his financial arrangements to include measures that would raise the retirement allowance to Canada's pioneers, many of whom, through no fault of their own, are in want or even destitute.

Mr. Ilsley, of course, did change his mind on the last day of the session when, without allowing any debate, he hurriedly announced that his department had arranged to raise the pension from $20 to $25 a month.

With the Alberta provincial bonus, this amounts in this province to $30 a month.

Now, one is entitled to speculate over Mr. Ilsley's reason for this sudden change in plans. Surely it could not have been the imminence of the Ontario election that altered his viewpoint.

However, his announcement was unsatisfactory for two reasons:

First, because it did not go far enough inasmuch as it failed to raise the pension adequately, failed to lower the age limit and failed to eliminate the means test.

Secondly, it was unsatisfactory because it was accomplished, not by statute, but under war emergency regulations. That means that when the war is over, it will have to go through parliament and be done all over again. It is purely temporary and operative only for the duration of the war.

Mr. Ilsley, cheerfully—and quite properly—has made a total gift of two billion dollars to our allies. He has said—again quite properly—that this imposes no hardship upon the Canadian people because it involves only a bookkeeping entry.

If Canada can make a bookkeeping entry of two billion dollars to keep up the morale of our associates in this war, why is it not possible to make a more modest bookkeeping entry, along the lines of social security, that would keep up the morale of our own people more efficiently than a dozen favorable reports from the front?

Mussolini Twenty Years Ago

Drew Pearson Recollects Personal Interview With Duce

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—Twenty years ago almost to the month, this columnist, then a very young newspaperman, interviewed Benito Mussolini, then a very young dictator.

Il Duce at that time was relatively fresh in office. He was at the peak of his popularity. Italy thrives on drama, and Mussolini was the matinee idol. To ciriticize him was rank heresy inside Italy, even unpopular outside Italy. People said he would inaugurate a new era, a new type of government which would replace outmoded democracy. Mussolini could do no wrong.

Drew Pearson

But as I look back on that interview with a man who rose so high, but fell so low, it was all too apparent even then that he was brittle. Even to my inexperienced eyes he was a papier-mache play-actor whose success depended on grand-standing.

I had been lucky enough to get an assignment to interview Europe's Twelve Greatest Men. They were not all great. Some had been able to fool the public into thinking they were great, some really had the stuff which makes for greatness. They included President Ebert of Germany, Benes of Czechoslovakia, Cosgrave of Ireland, Herriot of France, Seipel of Austria, Theunis of Belgium, Balfour of England, Cassel of Sweden and so on.

President Ebert fell in the category of really great men. There was no pretense about him. A former socialist and saddle-maker, he was sincerely struggling against overwhelming odds to make a success of German democracy. He was simple, direct, completely frank in discussing Germany's trials and her need of world co-operation.

Near-Great

Benes of Czechoslovakia was equally so. In fact most of the "great men" were simple, direct and unpretentious. Charles Schneider, head of the giant LeCreusot munitions plant in France, which even then was doing business with in France and across the line, was surrounded with more pretense than anyone else—until I got to Mussolini.

Il Duce was protected yards deep by red tape, protocol, this-and-that secretary, sonorous counselors, and other endless folderol. When I got to him, the stage had been perfectly set. No detail was overlooked. I was bowed through a maze of antercooms and pushed into a huge salon. It was dark. At the other end were windows, a desk and a man.

I advanced over a stretch of floor that seemed endless. The man at the desk pretended to concentrate on papers before him. Suddenly he bounced up, shook hands, and before I had time to open my mouth, plunged into the interview.

"You request my opinion of communism?" (This was the burning topic in Europe and I had submitted a list of questions in advance.)

"All right, it is finished. Smashed. It doesn't exist.

"It doesn't exist in Italy. It doesn't exist in Russia. Russia is just as capitalistic as before.

"In other countries of Europe perhaps, it is not finished. France will have her troubles. Likewise England. But Italy—Russia—have vomited. They feel better.

Communism

He sat down to arrange some notes his secretary had given him. I remained standing. From my vantage point I looked down on a bald head, with a fringe of hair at the back partially hiding a large wen.

"Is Germany finished with communism?" I asked.

"No, Germany has much to go through with yet. Communism," he continued, "is a spasm which convulses a nation and leaves it feeling better for the experience. Men and women suffer changes in their lives. So do nations."

Il Duce did not realize at that time—twenty years ago—how prophetic he was. Perhaps today, as he sits forlorn, he realizes it.

In response to another question, Il Duce went on to tell how he had brought prices down in Italy, an experience somewhat similar to FDR's current problems of the price roll-back. Only Mussolini used different methods.

"Prices must come down, I told my people—by force if necessary. Next morning my black shirts appeared in the market place and they forced the prices down."

Mussolini did not add that they forced down prices by spilling vegetables into the streets. Nor did he explain that very soon farmers found that it was more profitable to keep their produce at home, so that vegetables disappeared from the market altogether.

"Is it still necessary to use force in reforming Italy?" I asked.

"No," was his decisive reply, "force has not accomplished as much as the spirit of sacrifice."

Perhaps if Mussollini had stuck to that last statement Italy would not have used force to conquer Ethiopia, would not have shattered the peace machinery of the League, would not have headed the world totward war, and today he would not be a friendless, despised, lonely old man.

Growth of Labor Department

One of Most Important Divisions of Wartime Government

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—The transformation that war has brought to the labor department of the federal government, bringing it to the level of one of the most important war departments of government, represents one of the significant sidelights of war administration in Canada. In parliament, Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell disclosed that his department has been increased to more than 7,000 staff. It is therefore one of big departments of government.

Before the war the labor department consisted of less than 200 members. Its main work was conciliation of labor disputes, under the industrial disputes investigation act, and the dominion-provincial employment services. The department also collected labor statistics, administered the combines investigation act, the dominion annuities scheme, the fair wage policy, the technical education act, and similar acts.

During the depression, it became the administrator of various relief schemes, works projects and the youth training plan.

Conciliation work and administration of fair wages on government contracts increased greatly with the outbreak of war. The youth training plan was expanded to become the war emergency training program. Many new responsibilities were added to the department. In 1940 the unemployment insurance act provided for the national employment service, which replaced the older one, and a system of national unemployment insurance. Wage control policy required setting up of the national labor board and nine regional boards. The staff of these boards numbers 118 persons.

In April, 1942, the national registrtaion was turned over to the labor department, and this registry still requires a staff of 350 persons. It provided information for the military call-up and for other purposes. The department has been engaged in the involved task of compiling manpower records. It has conducted progressive enumerations of workers in industry from time to time, and an occupational history survey of members of the armed forces. Compiling data on labor supply and on the problem of re-establishing members of the armed forces engages 80 employees.

In December, 1942, the military call-up was transferred to the labor department. This work is performed through 13 divisional boards, and total staff, mostly outside Ottawa, is 1,100 persons. National selective service was established in March, 1942, and it has become one of the major wartime functions of the labor department, which has initiated and carried through policies to provide labor for war industries, such as shipbuilding, munitions and armaments manufacture, and basic industries such as agriculture, coal mining, base metal mining, logging, fishing and transportation. Under the selective service system, board powers under the labor permit system have been administered, to direct and control employment. It regulates the number of persons wishing to leave for employment outside Canada, the number of young persons taking university courses, especially scientific classes, and the engagement of technical and scientific personnel. For selective service offices of the unemployment insurance commission for the duration of the war.

There are now employment and selective service offices at 208 points, and regional offices in five cities, with a total staff of 4,800 persons. Few of them are at the head office in Ottawa. Each local office conducts employment placements, deals with the unemployment insurance benefits, civilian regulations, applications for labor exit permits, and the reinstatement of ex-service men. They serve as general information bureaus for employees and employers. Few government agencies contact so many persons as do the local selective service offices, and they are becoming the main centres of labor supply control.

Other activities assigned to the labor department have included the British Columbia security commission, dealing with transfers and rehabilitation of Canadian Japanese. The administrative staff in this field numbers 112. Since May, 1942, the department has had a controller of loading operations in Halifax, with power to co-ordinate all longshore activities in that important port. The department administers several other activities, such as day nurseries for children of mothers working in war industries, the training of personnel managers for industry, research planning, and the consideration of policy in almost every field of labor relations.

The extent to which representatives of labor share and assist in various activities of the department was mentioned by the labor minister. There are eight national committees associated with the department, and both labor unions and employers are represented on all of them. Representatives of workers are found on 15 regional boards or committees and 45 local employment advisory committees. The judgment of leaders of organized labor as well as industry is secured also in the activities of 34 courts of referee under the unemployment insurance act, which deal with insurance claims and with appeals under selective service civilian regulations.

SIDE GLANCES

"Don't worry about how much I spent for the flowers, Mom—I've got $17 left of my first week's pay, and I couldn't eat that much up!"

The Bulletin's Readers Say:

Employment

Editor, Bulletin: In a recent paper Mr. Ashby takes exception to a statement made by a university graduate that: "Every possible means must be devised to provide work for the thousands of returning men from the armed forces."

His letter implies that the graduate would have the returned men "work," that is do anything—dig holes and fill them—just to be undergoing physical exertion. A better term for both parties to use would be "useful employment," as it limits in a more precise degree the activity in question.

Each returned man would be given the opportunity to accept useful employment with remuneration; this would enable him, as a result of his efforts to receive a share of consumers goods. At the same time he would contribute to the production of goods and services for others.

It is evident from our knowledge of the past depression years, that enforced idleness was not useful. Certain classes of people were required to forego consumption of goods and services in order to support the enforced idle. This situation cannot be considered beneficial for the welfare of the group as a whole.

His letter indicates he is putting a different interpretation on the word "work." It would appear then, that a substitution of terms or a clearer definition of words may be necessary in order to avoid confusion.

A GRADUATE.

Manpower

Editor, Bulletin: There are large advertisements in the newspapers calling for men, urgently needed by the air force and the army.

Why not take all physically fit university students and graduates and put them in one of the services? They can finish their studies after the war. Is there anything unfair in that?

Also make an honest, careful survey of the young men on the farms—physically fit—and replace them with other men, or women, who can handle the jobs they are doing with a period of training. Don't forget, thousands of "green" city men from England took up farming here years ago, under much harder conditions, and have done as well as those born on the farm. Many of them have been outstanding successes in their various communities. Even ministers of agriculture!

These low categoried city men could work with older farmers and drive tractors. Women are doing it in other countries as well as some in Canada. Anyone can feed pigs, etc.

I notice that many men supposedly unfit for the services do a remarkably good day's work, and are probably better at all kinds of sport (young athletes in fact) than the average man in the army, navy or air force. Very strange?

Summing it all up, I should say there are probably thousands of Canadians, young and middle-aged, fit for active service, anywhere in the world, who are not in uniform and are not indispensable at their present jobs. A very careful survey should be made by officials not living in the same province.

"WAR VETERAN."

Canadian Grain

Editor, Bulletin: Of those dozen "recommendations" of the house of commons agriculture committee, I found the following points decidedly encouraging: (a) The advisability of paying farm storage on grain; (b) producer representation in the appointment of marketing boards; and (c) consideration of the advisability of authorizing the Wheat Board to take control of the handling and marketing of oats and barley on a pooling basis, according to grade."

I am one of your readers who feels that the general "grain" situation calls for long-term policy, rather than from month to month or even from season to season, particularly in its relation to the position along the livestock production front. This latter is visibly "tightening" as the months pass (alike north and south of the line) and calls for a far higher integration and co-operation as between the national policies of the United Nations than has, thus far, emerged.

It is not sufficient to merely look at the North American scene, in days when it is becoming plain to the man-in-the-street that millions of starving folks in Europe and elsewhere must be fed from this North American pantry for from one to three years? Even as these words are written, hundreds of thousands of Sicilians who are being daily liberated from Axis control are becoming partially dependent upon "food" coming in on the heels of the armies of freedom.

I would be pleased to see the Wheat Board "take control of the handling and marketing of oats and barley" at the earliest possible date. It would tend to build a feed-grain "evener" as between the Western and Eastern livestock farmers, and would put an end to such statements as the following, credited to an East Elgin farmer in today's issue of the Times-Journal (St. Thomas): "I can't afford to buy Western Canada oats at sixty cents a bushel—oats for which the western farmer receives 32 cents a bushel. Who gets that extra 28 cents a bushel?"

My understanding is that 31 cents puts a bushel of oats into Fort William? Surely the grower wins more than 28 cents? I would like to know the true "spread."

District News in Brief

Red Deer Co-Op Has Annual Meet

RED DEER—Satisfactory reports were presented at the fifth annual meeting of the Red Deer Consumers' Co-operative Association, held in the Cit yHall recently. C. E. Doupe, chairman of the board, presided. Report of manager G. H. England showed a successful year. A substantial increase in the turnover of the store was noted and reserve dividend certificates on the year's operations were distributed.

Votes of thanks were passed to the board of directors ,and the manager and staff. It was learned with regret that chairman C. E. Doupe had decided to retire from the board of directors.

Criticism was voiced of late opening hours of the local stores, and a motion adopted suggesting store hours be from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

A. M. Martin and Dan High were elected to the board of directors; Mrs. R. C. Moyse and Jacob Roth were re-elected, and Fred Domoney and Hugh Bower are continuing directors.

Red Deer Phones Show Small Profit

RED DEER—All directors were re-elected at the annual meeting of the Red Deer Mutual Telephone Company, held here recently. Directors are R. J. Murray, A. D. McCune, A. Sirois, Neil McPhee, Jas. Hazlett, Vic Bjorkeland and J. C. Puzey. President R. J. Murray was in the chair at the meeting.

Marshall Lees, secretary-treasurer, gave a financial statement showing the company was operating on a narrow margin of profit. The report gave concern, in view of replacements necessary in the system. Present rental charges of $1.75 per month just cover cost of operating, and allows nothing for rebuilding.

The company operates 165 miles of line and more than 330 miles of wires in territory which runs from twelve miles west of Red Deer to Pine Lake.

Extra Street Cars For Race Meeting

With the co-operation of Edmonton's street railway system, race headquarters said Saturday that arrangements had been completed to have extra street cars to transport race fans to the exhibition grounds Monday for the Model T Race Meet. There will be adequate accommodation on the street railway to and from all parts of the city during the afternoon, and citizens are urged to leave cars at home, to conserve gas coupons.

For those who drive cars out to the track, a parking space has been provided by the Royal Canadian Air Force, just south of the former Women's Building. All spectators will enter through the south gate, and then through a corridor made through the No. 3 "M" Depot grounds to the race track.

Canadian Legion members will be in charge of parking cars.

Mussolini Brought Before Italo King By Army Officers

BERNE, July 31.—(AP)—King Victor Emmanuel was compelled to send army officers to bring Mussolini to the palace when he asked for the Duce's resignation, according to the Gazetta Del Popolo of Turin.

The newspaper gave this version of events:

Mussolini, after the Fascist grand council voted against him Sunday, was supposed to go to the king to submit his resignation. Instead he went to an agricultural exhibition where he distributed prizes.

The king dispatched officers to get him. When Mussolini was brought to the palace he told the king there "are only a few centres of resistance," which he said "could be easily eliminated."

The king answered, according to the Gazetta, "We think you had better resign."

Col. Drew Denies Program "Hasty"

STRATFORD, Ont., July 31.—(CP)—Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative leader, said last night there is no truth in claims by rival parties that his 22-point platform is "hastily-devised." He said each point has been advocated by some Progressive Conservative member in the legislature during the last four years.

If elected in the Aug. 4 provincial election, Col. Drew told a public meeting, his government would reduce the taxes of real estate by at least one-half for school purposes.

The Progressive Conservative plan with regard to taxation was not original. A similar system had worked successfully in Britain, where it had been established that reduction of taxes on real estate would not increase general taxation "by one cent, because it will start a building program of great proportions that will in turn produce more revenue."

Fuehrer Sends Il Duce Gift For Birthday

LONDON, July 31—(CP)—The Berlin radio announced yesterday that Hitler had sent Mussolini the complete works of Nietzsche, specially printed and with a "cordial dedication by Hitler" as a 60th birthday present. The broadcast said the books were delivered by Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring. Presumably Mussolini was in custody when the present was delivered.

U.S. Bombers Hit Nazi Plane Plant

By RICE YAHNER

LONDON, July 31.—(AP)—Four-motored American bombers in strong force battered a German plane factory at Kassel yesterday while lesser Allied planes swept northern France and the Low Countries in force in an explosive epilogue to a 2,300-ton bombing of burning Hamburg in its seventh attack in a week.

The heavy bombers shot down 27 of the 52 or more German fighters destroyed in the daylight sweeps, among the heaviest of the Allied aerial offensive. Eleven big bombers, one medium bomber, three light bombers and seven fighters were lost.

FIFTH FREEDOM

Yes . . . Bill and Betty . . . Jack and Jane . . . are going places when the fighting is over and victory won.

Bill is in uniform . . . Betty is making munitions . . . Jack and Jane are pretty young yet, but old enough to know what war is all about.

They're going places because they are part of Canada . . . and no other nation will afford such breadth and freedom of opportunity in the post-war world . . .

. . . because, back of all our great natural resources . . . back of our growing industrial might . . . stands an electrical power development unrivalled anywhere on earth.

Today the electrical industry is throwing its immense resources into winning the war!

But think what it is going to mean when nearly ten million horsepower now developed in Canada are turned from war to peace.

It's going to mean more power for peace-time industries . . . more comforts and conveniences for our homes . . . more progress in culture and advancement . . . more opportunities for our fighters and workers . . . and a brighter future for all our children.

Yes . . . Canadians are "going places" . . . and electricity will lead the way.

That's why Westinghouse . . . pioneer of modern power development . . . is planning now for the production of new electrical equipment for our industries and up-to-date electric appliances for our homes in the world of tomorrow.

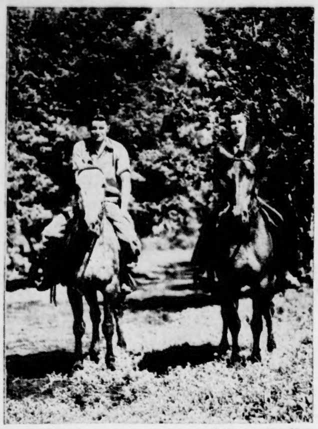
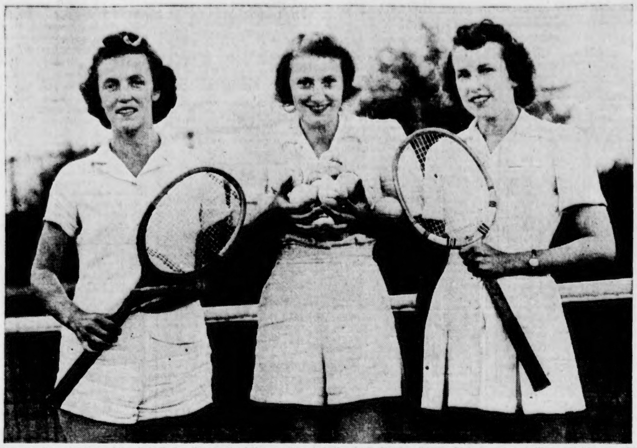
Diversified Sports Occupy Edmontonians During Summer Months



Left, Lloyd Lufkin, Hollywood, and Harriette Dalphond, 12513 Stony Plain Road, riding along a sun-splashed lane near the St. Albert Trail. Despite the advances of automobiling and this city's position as an air centre, horseback riding remains a popular pastime.



There may be a shortage of tennis balls in other parts of the country—but the Civil Service Tennis Club is not curtailing activities on that account. A pretty trio of club members, from the left, are Cal Holmgren, Dorothy Britton, and Helen Carr.

Swimming and the Good Ol' Summertime are synonomous. Here are Doris Fishwick (sitting) and Margaret Long, making a cute picture at the South Side swimming pool.

Summertime in Edmonton brings a diversity of sport activity surpassed by few cities on the North American continent. Horseriding, cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, baseball, in fact any sport that can be named is played here, in a climate second to none.

Three all-round sportsmen of the city, snapped on the Municipal Golf Club Course. From the left are Ed MacRae, Francois (Bri) Brissette, and Maurice Richards. In the background the dome of the Legislative Buildings and the High Level Bridge can be seen.

One charming reason the Walk-Rite baseball club won the North Alberta championship. It's Jean Barton in the picture. Looks like Jean's just about ready to bat an eyelash!

Canoeing at White Mud Creek is a cool way to spend the hot summer days. In the left canoe are Marian Ross, 9407 99 street, and Dave Paulson, 8913 87 street, while at the right, Marion Clark, 9630 99 street and Wally Bradley, 9319 95 street are pictured.

Staff members of Alberta College enjoy croquet during lunch hour. From the left are F. S. McCall, B.A., D.D.; A. McDonald; D. W. Hyndman, and W. G. McKerlie.

Beatrice McCrum, 10040 87 avenue, all ready for a jaunt in her canoe.

At the Alberta Avenue Bowling Club, members can be seen these evenings enjoying their favorite pastime. Front row, from the left, are W. Penfold, J. Colville, and Mrs. McPherson. Back row, from the left, includes H. S. Jackson, Mrs. McChuley, Pte. Sneddon, B. White and J. Bonnett.

THE Negroes and half-breeds, the hewers of wood and drawers of water, listened to the gossip telling the tale of an Arab who had come from their town . . . describing him . . . mentioning where he was . . . a man who was very ill and kept on babbling two names: Nancy and Zaman Khan.

The blacks spread the tale by word of mouth.

Moise Torjeman heard it from the lips of his Sudanese cook. He spoke of it to Zaman Khan who was pleasantly occupied, before going to bed, with a brandy bottle and a gurgling water-pipe.

The Afghan rose.

A few seconds later, he knocked at Nancy Brown's door.

"Mem-saheb!" he called. "Mem-saheb!"

These last days, while Lincoln had crossed the wilderness, Zaman Khan had obeyed his instructions to the letter, keeping close track of Nancy Brown.

She had grown irritated.

"What's the idea?" she had demanded.

"What idea, mem-saheb?"

"Snooping after me all the time!"

"Hookum hai—it is an order," had been his answer.

"Whose order?" she had asked; and the Afghan had kept silent.

Often, during those days, her impatient, angry question; and, as often, Zaman Khan's mocking silence. Yet, deep in her heart, she had known without being told.

Again she would ask the Afghan:

"Was it your friend who told you to play nursemaid to me? What did he say?"

Zaman Khan would smile maddeningly, without replying; would ask himself:

"Is she really a spy? If she were, would she inquire, so freely, so foolishly, about the saheb? And, if she is not a spy, why does she ask so often about him? Ah! I think I know."

Now, tonight, he was knocking at her door.

"Mem-saheb!" he called. "Mem-saheb!"

* * *

A second or two later, she appeared on the threshold, sleepy-eyed, wrapped in a kimona.

"What's the matter?" She was nervous, a little frightened.

Zaman Khan told her in a few words. She stood quite still; did not even tremble.

"I must go to him," she said steadily.

"And I."

"Yes. You and I"

"We start at once."

He turned. She said:

"Wait-"

"Oh—?"

"I'll give you money—to buy things—for the journey and—"

"Money?" he echoed, and she reddened under his stony stare. "By the honor of my mother—have I not money of my own, would I not sell my very soul when a friend is in need? Do I love the saheb less than you do?"

Swiftly, Nancy's keen mind pounced on the word "saheb." So the man was not an Arab, was one of her own race . . . it made things—oh—more easy. . . .

She interrupted her thoughts.

"Will we get to him in time?" she demanded.

"There is always a way if you know how to twist the mule's tail. I, being an Afghan, know every trick of twisting. two things are needed. Speed and sound. I shall see to both."

* * *

There had come to town, only a week earlier, an elderly Arab, Asad Suleyman, a retired grain merchant who, chased out of Tripoli by the threat and clamor of war, had returned to his native Yebba. Haughtily he had come, riding in a rickety, rattling old Ford—it was the only automobile within many square miles — on which, occasionally, he would drive about the countryside, frightening the dogs, the camels, the children.

He and the Afghan had become good friends immediately. So now, although roused in the middle of the night, he showed no anger.

His friend would like to borrow the car, at once?

What for?

Zaman Khan did not wish to say? Perhaps an amorous adventure?

Help yourself. There is plenty of oil and petrol. Only — can you drive?"

"No, but the woman can."

Suleyman winked broadly. He poked Zaman Khan in the ribs.

"Wah"—he exclaimed admiringly—"I wish I were your age and—oh—less married! Good luck to you!"

Hurriedly Zaman Khan went to the outskirts of town, to Murad el-Touati's coffee-house, a disreputable dive where nightly met the underworld of Yebba. Arabs and blacks and half-breeds. Men and women.

They greeted him noisily.

"Here!" A hand thrust a bottle at him. "Wet your gullet, O son of the world!"

"Thank you, thank you!" said the Afghan. "But not tonight. Tonight I need the hand of a friend."

At once a dozen men rose. A dozen weapons flickered. He laughed.

"Not a hand to draw steel," he added, "but a hand to beat the signal drum. Who of you heroes knows how to make them talk?"

There stepped forward a large Aquamoo Negro with kinky, snow-white hair, a vivid scar running from his left eye to the right corner of his mouth.

"I do, Khan effendi."

"Excellent, Ayuwa!" The Afghan drew him into a corner. "Listen. . . ."

Expect Canada Will Be Member Of Food Board

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(CP)—In recognition of Canada's position as the second ranking food provider among the United Nations, Canada shortly may be appointed to full membership on the combined food board, it was reported here yesterday.

The board at present is limited to representatives of the United States and Britain. Its function is to co-ordinate food production and distribute surpluses among the United Nations. Its headquarters is in Washington.

It was suggested here that official announcement of Canada's nomination to full membership may be delayed two or three weeks although only details remain to be completed.

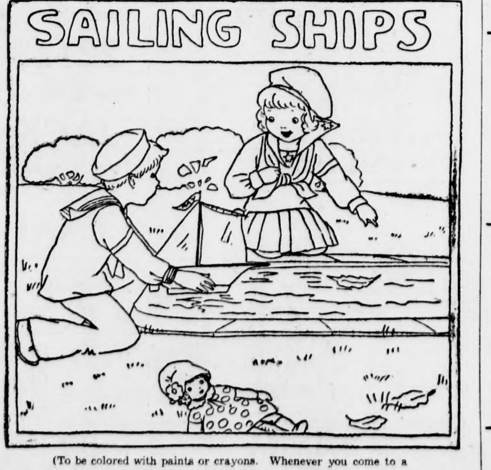
Killed in Crash

HAMILTON, Ont., July 31.—(CP)—Sgt. James Allan Cowman, 26, of the R.C.A.F., was killed yesterday in an airplane crash at Bella Bella, B.C., his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cowman, of Hamilton, learned officially last night. No details were given.



(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters, use that color.)

"We have lots of fun sailing ships," says YELLOW-haired Susie May. "Teddy has a RED ship with a bright YELLOW rudder and keel, and a RED pennant flying from the mast, and he sails her right across the BLUE waters of the pool—we call it the Indian ocean and we make believe we are going to India to fetch some silks for Betty, my doll."

"Susie May sails her ships too," cries Teddy. "They are YELLOW leaves, and she always has plenty of ships in drydock. See, there are two now beside Betty. Susie May is a mighty fine sailor!"

Both Susie May and Teddy wear White sailor blouses, and their collars and cuffs are BLUE trimmed with White, Teddy's with braid, Susie May's with stars. Their neckties are RED, so are the stripes on the sleeves of their blouses. Teddy's trousers are White, but Susie May's skirt is BLUE. Teddy's hat is White, and Susie May's is BLUE.

Betty has YELLOW hair and Teddy's is BROWN, both have PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks. Betty has PINK cheeks, too.

The grass is bright GREEN and the sky is BLUE.

Paint the border of this picture RED and the lettering GREEN.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

THERE is little question but that the four girls who will represent this city in the athletic meet being held in conjunction with the Caledonian Games in Vancouver will give a good account of themselves next Saturday.

All have been consistent performers in local track and field meets and it will be particularly surprising if Edith Skitch does not cut quite a swath in the junior division.

Edith's work in school competition has been very impressive—her holding of provincial records in the 60 and 100-metre sprints and running broad and high jumps being ample evidence of her accomplishments. The others on the team of four—Violet McGhan, whose home is in Clover Bar, Sylvia Callaway and Gladys Limming—will enter the senior sprints and jumps.

And while he would modestly decline any share of the credit for making local representation at the Vancouver meet possible, there is little doubt that the very unselfish and genuinely altruistic work of A. R. Lawrence can be detected in the background.

Mr. Lawrence has for years displayed a great interest in athletics amongst this community's younger citizens—in fact, he devotes all of his time to that worthy object. And in addition to being a keen supporter of the Edmonton Girls' Athletic Club, "A. R." also supplied much of the spark required in the successful organization and operation this summer of the flourishing Boyle Street Boys' Softball League.

HERE AND THERE . . .

DEFEAT for the Dodgers at the hands of the Arrows tomorrow afternoon will mean their elimination from this year's senior baseball playoffs. The Yanks still hold a two and half game lead over the second place Hornets who now cannot be squeezed out of a berth, for even should they lose every game they couldn't finish worse than in a deadlock for the runner-up position.

Dodgers still have four to play (including a possible tie re-play with the Yanks) and the Arrows three. A victory for the latter on Sunday would give them eight wins and so even should they drop their two last they would wind up with eight wins and 10 losses. On the other hand should the Dodgers lose tonight and win the others, they would finish the schedule with seven wins and 11 losses.

Tonight's benefit game between the All-Stars and Yanks is deserving of the support of every baseball fan in the city. As is well known it is being staged under the auspices of the Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., and the men of the destroyer "Athabascan" alone are being "cut in" on the proceeds. Even the members of Renfrew Park's staff are donating their services.

There appears to be plenty of high-voltage tennis coming up in the semi-finals of the men's doubles in the Civic Service tournament. In one bracket Jimmy Hoyle and Lawson Caseley are lined up against Garner Caddel and Carl Farvolden and they play at 2.30 p.m. tomorrow. In the other half George Docherty and Alf Blyth will meet the Clarke-Watts combination.

Each Enters Four Events

Four Local Girls to Compete In Vancouver Athletic Meet

GLADYS LIMMING, Violet McGhan, Sylvia Callaway and Edith Skitch, four members of the Edmonton Girls' Athletic Club, leave next Wednesday for Vancouver where they will compete in the western Canada track and field meet, which is being held Aug. 7 in conjunction with the Caledonian Games Association.

Each of the girls will compete in four events on the program, sprints, high and running broad jumps ad relay. Edith Skitch is eligible for junior division, the others all being seniors according to the age classes specified in the entry forms.

All of the girls have competed in Edmonton meets and they were also at the provincial interscholastic meet at Athabasca last fall, where Miss McGhan was awarded the Alberta W.A.A.F. trophy, Miss Callaway the intermediate and Miss Skitch the junior. At this meet the last named athlete broke four provincial records.

The local girls' practice at Clarke Stadium was inspected on Friday evening by Frank Richard, a former well known Edmonton athlete, who is visiting in his home town, and who aids in the coaching of the Vancouver Club athletes. He expressed his pleasure at the prospect of having the girls, through the generous aid of a number of suporters, to make the trip to the coast.

Through the kind efforts of Miss Anne Clark, of Vancouver, a former president of the W.A.A.F., the athletes will be billeted by the Caledonian Games committee during the coast city stay.

Arthur Skitch, father of Edith, one of the competitors and who is principal of Eastwood school will act as manager of the team and Mrs. R. Callaway, mother of Sylvia, is going along as chaperone.

To Vancouver

Gladys Limming, above, is one of a team of four who will compete under the colors of the Edmonton Girls' Athletic Club in the western track and field meet in Vancouver next Saturday. The other girls are Violet McGhan, Sylvia Callaway and Edith Skitch.

Seven Provincial Swim Titles Decided at South Side Gala

Doug Lemmon is Winner of Wrigley Mile

Fay Griffiths Takes Ladies' Mile Feature

The Wrigley mile, feature event of the Alberta provincial swimming championships held at the South Side pool Friday night was won by Doug Lemmon of Edmonton who went the distance in 25 minutes and 11 seconds to finish a length ahead of Cpl. John Bishop of Vancouver, now stationed at No. 3 "M" Depot.

There were six other provincial titles decided at the meet held under the auspices of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, three of which were for Wrigley trophies. Cups were awarded in the ladies' mile, junior ladies' half mile, and junior men's half mile races as well as the men's mile.

Lemmon, of the West End Swimming Club also won the men's 105 yards medley which was one of the eight non-title events staged at the gala. He did 35 yards breaststroke, 35 backstroke and 35 freestyle in 1 min., 16 and 3-5 sec. to edge out Roger Jaeger, a member of the Royal Canadian Navy who hails from Calgary. Jack Pomfret, a Vancouver airman stationed at No. 3 "M" Depot was third.

Fay Griffith took the ladies' mile by swimming the 50 lengths of the pool in 32 minutes and 26 seconds to beat Cora McArthur, the only other entrant in the event.

Ronny Neilson, another Vancouver airman now at No. 4 I.T.S., won the provincial 220 title finishing about 10 feet ahead of Roger Jaeger. Jaeger held the lead until the last lap, but Neilson, a steady swimmer all the way, overtook him and finished in two minutes and 48 3-5 seconds to win.

Jim Milne, a local boy from the West End Swimminb Club became the new champ in the junior men's half mile when he swam the 25 lengths in 13 minutes and 40 1-5 seconds, just about three seconds faster than Roy Keen who was second.

Bruce Hembling, an Edmonton sailor, took the men's 50 yards championship by beating AC2. C. B. Cobhlan, of No. 3 F.T.S., Pierce, Alta. The time was 25 and 4-5 seconds.

The diving competition, also a title affair, was keenly contested and saw R. R. "Bonny" Jackson, a civilian instructor at H.M.C.S. "Nonsuch," win over Stuart Dewar, former University of Saskatchewan diver. The event was composed of five compulsory dives and two optional ones.

The trophy for the junior ladies' half-mile race was won by Barbara Leach, who went the distance in 15 minutes and 22 3-5 seconds, which is very good time. Daria Shoemaker, considerably younger and the only other entrant, had very little trouble in going the 25 lengths, but was unable to keep up the pace of Miss Leach.

Following is a complete list of results:

Ladies' mile, provincial championship, Wrigley trophy—1, Fay Griffith; 2, Corna McArthur. Time, 32 minutes, 26 sec.

Girls' 12 and under, 50 yards—1, Daria Shoemaker 2, Marie Lee; 3, Doreen Elliott. Time, 34 sec.

Men's 220 yards, provincial championship—1, Ronny Neilson; 2, Roger R. Jaeger; 3, Ronald J. Moran. Time, 2 minutes, 48 3/5 sec.

Junior men's half mile, provincial championship, Wrigley trophy—1, Jim Milne; 2, Roy Keen. Time, 13 minutes, 40 1/5 sec.

Boys 12 and under, 50 yards—1, Orville Cusack; 2, Bob Cruthers; 3, Ted Leach. Time 36 sec.

Ladies' 50 yards—Anna Ware. Time 29 4/5 sec.

Men's 50 yards, provincial championship—1, Bruce Hembling; 2, G. B. Coghlan; 3, Roger Jaeger. Time, 25 2/5 sec.

Men's diving, provincial championship (five compulsory dives)—R. R. "Bonny" Jackson; 2, Stuart Dewar; 3, Ron Neilson; 4, Robertson; 5, LAC Highman; 6, Art Thompson.

Men's mile, provincial championship, Wrigley trophy—1, Doug Lemmon; 2, Cpl. John Bishop. Time, 25.11.

Junior ladies halg mile, provincial championship, Wrigley trophy—Barbara Leach; 2, Daria Shoemaker. Time, 15 minutes, 22 3/5 sec.

Boys 14 years and under, 50 yards—1, Victor Timmins; 2, Doug Swail; 3, Gene Acton. Time, 32.5 sec.

Junior boys' 50 yards—1, Stewart Morish; 2, Roy Keen and Bob Fleming (tie for second). Time 31 sec.

Men's medley—1, Doug Lemmon; 2, Roger Jaeger; 3, Jack Pomfret. Time, 1 minute, 16 3/5 sec.

Ladies' relay—1, South Side; 2, East End. Time, 1 minute, 30 1/5 sec.

Men's relay—1, West End; 2, No. 3 "M" Depot; 3, No. 2 A.O.S. Time, 2 minutes, 50 sec.

Arlington 'Cap To Be Run Today

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—The 36-day Arlington Park race meeting, transplanted to its sister track, Washington Park, because of transportation difficulties, comes to an end today with the running of the $50,000 added Arlington Handicap at a mile and a quarter.

The race shapes up as a possible duplicate performance of the $50,000 Stars and Stripes Handicap earlier in the meeting when Rounders, Thumbs Up and Marriage finished in that order. All three will start today. Devil Diver, the losing favorite from the east in the Stars and Stripes, will be missing. There will be an eastern invader, however in Salto, carrying the colors of William Helds of New Orleans. Salto's best race this season was finishing second to Market Wise in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap July 5.

Brooklyn Drops Third in Row To Climbing Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers muffed a chance to regain second place in the National League yesterday, dropping their third in a row to the Cubs, 12-3, while the Giants walloped Pittsburgh.

After getting off to a shaky start Hiram Bithorn was effective in the pinches to chalk up his fifth in a row and 13th victory of the season for the Bruins.

Nicholson was the big gun of the Cubs' attack, driving in five runs with a homer, a double and a single in addition to getting a base on balls in the Cubs' four-run fifth inning.

Corvettes Lose To Bomberettes Girls' Fastball

Air Force Bomberettes scored four in the second and one in the fifth Friday night to defeat Hayward Corvettes 5-3 in a Senior Girls' Fastball League game at Kingsway Park.

Maguire pitched effectively for the winners, only allowing five hits while her team got seven off of Ann Bilawey.

Beatrice Hall scored in the first inning to give the Corvettes the lead, but Bomberettes came back in the next frame to count four, which proved to be the winning runs.

The Air Force club added another in the fifth by Lil Graham, Maud McLean and Evelyn McCormick scored in the last of a seven-inning game to finish the counting.

No. 3 "M" Depot Takes Opener of Fastball Series

No. 3 "M" Depot went one up in the intermediate men's best of three fastball series Friday night when they trimmed Centrals 5-1 at Kingsway Park. The second game will be played Monday night.

Johnny Fulthorp's five hit pitching and Bill Montamurro's three hits in four times at bat led the winners to victory. Fulthorp struckout 12 of the 30 batters to face him and didn't allow a single walk.

The Airmen took the lead in the fourth inning on Harry Kermode's run and were never headed. They added two more in the fifth which were scored by Vince Cocoroch and Watts.

The losers' only run came in the eighth when Bruce MacKay made first on an error and scored on another one that was good for three bases.

Rae Humble and John Morrison came in in the last of the eighth to clinch the game.

Nurmi Claims 4 Minute Mile Not Impossible

HELSINKI, July 31.—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great runner who still jogs from four to six kilometers two or three times weekly to keep in condition, is confident some runner will run the four-minute mile.

"When you get a fine field of good competitors setting a fast pace, and track conditions just right, surely someone will run a four-minute mile," said Nurmi who hasn't engaged in competition himself since 1933.

He predicted that if Americans altered their training methods so long distance runners get workouts over fields and hills they'd become easily as outstanding as Gunder Haegg and Arne Andersson. He added good runners trained for many years and Americans couldn't expect to reach their peak condition during college competition; that they must run until they are 25 or 27 years of age.

Nurmi, now 46, ran in competition until he was 36.

Haegg easily is the best all-around runner of the present day, Nurmi added. He expressed the belief, though, that the greatest long-distance runner of all time was Walter G. George, who died recently in England. George ran the mile in 4:12.6. A record which stood for 50 years.

Today's Sport Parade

By Oscar Fraley

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

NEW YORK, July 31.—The campaign against the American army's sports ban was carried to President Roosevelt yesterday with the chief exhibit being the fact that value of "collision training" in body contact athletics was proven in the foxholes of Bataan.

Rep. Samuel A. Weiss of Pennsylvania disclosed at the convention of eastern athletic directors that the question of soldier trainees participating in intercollegiate athletics had been taken to the President for final settlement. He held that men who had participated in "physical violence" sports were better conditioned to the shock of warfare.

John B. Kelly, former Olympic oarsman who now heads the national physical fitness committee, supported the congressman's stand.

"I believe that at the beginning of the war the army was held up by men with sports training," Kelly said. "They held the line in such places as the Philippines until the rest of us got in shape to fight for our lives."

"The situation is dark—but it isn't hopeless," declared Weiss, in revealing that 256 congressmen had signed a petition and sent it to Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson demanding that the army fall in line with the navy in permitting sports participation for student trainees.

LIKES FOOTBALL

"SECRETARY of Navy Frank Knox told me that he liked football men because they react quickly and instinctively," Weiss said. "Knox told me he likes those jitterbug kids who don't need a second aim but give it to the enemy—bang, bang, bang."

In support of their point the sports advocates told of incidents in which American soldiers, trained in body contact sports, were victorious both in mind and muscle over "muscle jerks"—the bicep-building gymnasium products of the foe.

There was Capt. Tommy Trapnell, a West Point gridiron hero in the golden days before America was staggered by that first treacherous blow of the war. He spent two days in a foxhole and then rallied his men—his team—and led a successful assault with the simple cry:

"Let's get at 'em boys."

"THIS ban has caused a regrettable situation," Weiss said, "because the boys are willing to play on their own time—and the boys out there in the jungles and the foxholes want them to keep on playing. I've had letters from out there, from the steaming jungles of Guadalcanal and New Guinea, pleading for the continuation of sports. Their greatest joy is a short wave sports broadcast or a six-weeks-old paper with sporting news."

Wartime hysteria caused England to drop sports at the start of the war, Weiss explained, but it since has reinstated them with at least four events drawing crowds exceeding 75,000.

"Several games were halted by air raid alarms and the fans would duck for the shelters," he said, "but after the all clear, they'd come right back and watch the finish of the game. If they can do this—despite the Luftwaffe—what's the matter with America?"

Argos Now Hold Only Slim Lead

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 31.—(CP)—Jim Rice's boat club oarsmen from Ecorse, Mich., last night appeared as a distinct threat to Toronto Argos' chances of retaining their Canadian championship won at last year's Royal Canadian Henley here.

Friday on the old Welland Canal the Ecorse men won three events on Henley's 1943 program and climbed to within two points of Argos in the aggregate standing—Argos 27 and Ecorse 25.

The Toronto crewmen added two victories during today's program—second of Henley's three-day meet—and these triumphs combined with one win and a third Thursday left them on top of the heap. The leaders were closely trailed by Hamilton Leanders with 20 and Buffalo West Side 18 points.

Ecorse took the day's feature event when Russell Reynolds won the association singles and qualified for the featured singles on today's windup program. Reynolds and Al Walker of the Belleville, N.J., Nereids, raced it out throughout with less than a length separating them at the finish.

Pepper Martin Pitches: Orioles Enter Protest

BALTIMORE, July 31.—(AP)—Pepper Martin, former star infielder of the St. Louis Cardinals and now manager of the Rochester Club in the International League, tried his hand at pitching Thursday night against the Baltimore Orioles, and his action brought protests from the Bird management.

Martin went to the mound in the third inning of the second game of a doubleheader, with Rochester trailing, 5-1. He walked five successive hitters and gave three straight hits.

He then motioned to Rochester outfielder Paul Wargo to take the mound and sailed his glove into the dugout. Wargo proved ineffective and Gerry Burmeister, a catcher, finished the game on the mound.

The game ended in a 19-7 Oriole victory.

Racing Resumes At Victoria Park Calgary, Today

CALGARY, July 31.—Final race meeting of the year under the auspices of the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association, a seven-day session at Calgary's Victoria Park gets under way today to bring to a close 59 days of organized racing on the prairies this summer.

With 250 horses and a score of riders on hand an outstanding card has been lined up for the opening day of the final meeting with the Handicap probably that outstanding affair that Calgary patrons of the sports of Kings have witnessed this season.

Rhadagus, winner of three of his four handicap performances on the fair circuit and also a winner at Winnipeg, has drawn top impost of two 125 pounds in the Banff handicap—the seven-furlong feature. Alf Tarn's speedster, Ebony Moon, gets in with 113 while Legend Call, another recent winner, has been assigned 116. Others in the field include Chief Ritchie, Dissent, Andsan, Antena, Amsterson and Nible King.

Judging from the opening card, presiding steward and racing secretary George W. Schilling, is going to experience little difficulty in filling races at the meeting. No less than 87 thoroughbreds were listed on the overnight entry sheets for opening day with 11 named in the feature. Fields are limited to eight.

Although the marathon billed for the opening failed to fill, lovers of distance affairs will still see numerous distance performers in action on the curtain raiser with three of the races at a distance of 1 1-16 miles.

An addition to the riding colony which performed on the fair circuit was announced Friday with the return to the prairies of R. Diaz, who has been riding at Vancouver. Diaz was one of the leading apprentice riders at Winnipeg. Other jockeys on hand include J. Craigmyle, R. Russell, R. Taves, J. Sievewright, J. Braddish and J. Jasperson.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

FLT. LIEUT. REVEREND J. GORDON BROWN
Chaplain, R.C.A.F., Overseas

"God's Way in the Sea"

"Thy way is in the sea, and Thy path in the great waters." Ps. 77:19.

THIS is written on a Sunday morning at sea, as we sail through the waters of the North Atlantic in convoy. Surely "Earth has not anything to show more fair," or more impressive than such an armada of the Merchant Marine as here may be seen stretching away to that limitless horizon against which are silhouetted the guardian ships of the Navy, the escort of vessels which patrols our path and protects us from "the lurking menace of the deep."

All honour and tribute to these matchless seamen of ours who guide and man the ships that bear the commerce which spells life and carry in their holds the future hope of the world. Without the Merchant Navy this war would have been over—and lost, long ago! Bravery to spare, singleness of purpose, brilliant daring against tremendous odds are here, and this devotion to duty deserves an Empire's gratitude.

But methinks there is something more than quiet courage here. One cannot mingle with seafaring folk for long and not detect an acknowledgement of and faith in Him who holds the sea in the hollow of his hand. A few minutes ago we were assembled for Divine Worship. The Captain of our ship conducted the service as is his custom, "every Sunday, in peace or in war, without let or hindrance," (to use his own words), and when he besought Him "who hast compassed the waters with bounds until day and night come to an end" to receive into his gracious protection "the persons of those who serve in the Merchant Navy and the convoy in which we sail" there was an intimacy of tone which no land lubber could emulate. It was then I recalled the testimony of one who has worked among sailors all his life: "I have known good men and bad among sailors but I never knew a single atheist among them all." A deep sea sailor has met God too often on the great deep ever to deny His existence. As the Psalmist put it, "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord and His wonders in the deep."

"The works of the Lord." Yes, it is here God works. We divide up the land among ourselves, we stake off a part of it and say, "That belongs to me." But no man ever staked off a rod of the sea and said: "That's mine." At least not with any noticeable effect!

Roll on thou deep and dark blue ocean, roll;
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain.
Man marks the earth with ruin, his control
Stops with the shore.

We build our highways on the land, run iron bands across the continents and bend one city to another, but out here on the sea when these steel-shod keels have cut a furrow through the waves the waters close in upon it and leave the ocean as unmarked as before. God's working on the sea! He took the title to seven-tenths of the earth's surface and keeps it in his own name. Sensible men will not attempt to interfere with that.

"And His wonders in the deep." There is a combination of beauty and power about the ocean that speaks of God.

When the deep in slumber lies
Under bright and peaceful skies, one sees the beauty — sun fire dancing on the ripples with tireless delight, and infrequent foam flecks rising and vanishing like clusters of white flowers. Beauty rich and deep and tender beyond our understanding, the limitless beauty of God, is here. Then,

When the winds in fury rave,
Lifting high the rushing wave,

one sees the power. Spirit is here—awful, brooding, defiant, eternal. In these moments when the sea, resistless in its might and majesty, is crowned by mountainous billows, impressing one with its affrighting power, it becomes a God-like thing toward which the inevitable attitude is humility of soul. Yes, if one journeys over the waters to the ends of the earth, to the lonely places where Leviathan takes his pastime,

Where the great whales come sailing by,
Sail and sail, forever and aye,

he will see shining through the ocean the same matchless glory, this combination of beauty and power, made infinitely impressive with its eternity. Truly God's way is in the sea, and His path in the great waters.

City Reserve Units Prepare To Break Camp

Men in Edmonton's Reserve Army units will be back here Sunday after two strenuous weeks at Sarcee camp, near Calgary, after undergoing intensive arms and battle drill.

It is expected the troop train will arrive at the C.N.R. station shortly after 7 p.m. Sunday.

The bronzed members of Canada's part-time army had excellent weather. It rained one night for half an hour but the main part of the camp was away in the foothills on manoeuvres.

Outside the usual cases of over-indulgence in sun-bathing, medical officers had few cases with which to work up a practice in camp.

STAGE SHAM BATTLE

Drilling and training reached a climax last Wednesday when the two biggest units in Sarcee were divided into two armies, Eastland and Westland, for a sham battle for Bragg Creek, 15 miles west of the training camp.

Eastland, made up of the 4th Armored Divisional Troops Co., R.C.A.S.C., with units from both Edmonton and Calgary, were the attacking force against the defending Calgary Highlanders, which made up the Westland army.

In the first stage of the battle Eastland lost its commander, and adjutant. Westland attacked Eastland headquarters and captured "General" Lt.-Col. Lon Cavanaugh of Calgary and his aide. The Westland truck carrying the general, however, was blasted by Eastland artillery as it attempted to make a getaway and both captors captured were knocked out of the battle.

Besides the Edmonton unit of the R.C.A.S.C., a number of men from the 2nd (Reserve) Battalions Edmonton Fusiliers and the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, were attached to the Calgary Highlanders with whom they took their training.

OTHER CITY UNITS

Other Edmonton units in camp were the 4th R.C.S., (R), and the ordnance workshop, R.C.O.C.

CSM. I. R. Williamson, D.C.M., of Edmonton, was the acting regimental sergeant major of the R.C.A.S.C. camp, and Sgt.-Maj. D. Heddleston, was company sergeant major.

A supply depot commanded by Capt. T. W. Cogland, M.C., of Edmonton was set up in the camp where the captain superintended distribution of rations to the various units.

Today, the reserve army men, looking forward to going home, were going about the big business of breaking camp.

War Board Orders Full Living Bonus In All Shipyards

OTTAWA, July 31.—(CP)—The National War Labor Board announced last night that effective this date all shipyards under its jurisdiction paying less than the full cost-of-living bonus of $4.25 weekly now will pay the full amount. The announcement did not identify the yards affected.

The board also said the general wage structure in all of eastern shipyards now is under survey and "careful consideration," and "it is expected that in a reasonable time the question of wage adjustments will be worked out."

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

JOHN OLIVER

A NEW DAY has dawned in the United States orchestral firmament. History was made within the last week when a native-born American was appointed conductor of a major symphony orchestra. Now, at first glance it may not appear to be a matter of outstanding importance that an American has been named to lead one of the larger and more prominent symphonic groups. But, when it is remembered that of the 16 leading orchestras in the United States, all have had foreign-born conductors, the fact that an American-born has crashed the charmed circle, is almost shattering in its ramifications and also in its news value. This unique honor, and it is unique, goes to Alfred Wallenstein, who has been appointed permanent conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Edmonton music lovers will take pleasure in Mr. Wallenstein's appointment, as he has been heard here on broadcast programs both as a soloist and conductor. In going to Los Angeles, he renews friendships of 25 years. A quarter of a century ago he was first 'cellist in the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and in the last 12 years he has appeared with it as guest conductor on frequent occasions. Mr. Wallenstein was born in Chicago, Oct. 7, 1898, and was educated in the Public schools. He has been appearing in public since he was nine years old. He has toured the North American continent as a soloist and conductor. He was solo 'cellist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra from 1923 to 1929 after he had left the Los Angeles Philharmonic. In 1929 Arturo Toscanini took him to New York as first 'cellist of the Philharmonic, with which he remained until 1935, when he resigned to become music director of a major radio station.

He was heard here as soloist with many of the New York Philharmonic broadcasts, and later, as a conductor, with the internationally-celebrated program that features as soloist Richard Crooks, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Association and a prime favorite with Edmonton audiences. He has had the opportunity of benefitting by all the knowledge gained as a first chair man in great orchestras under the best conductors. He has been able to analyz their strength and weakness. The knowledge gained of human nature, and the literature of music, combined with his own musicianship and training, admirably equip him for his new task.

Having played in orchestras Mr. Wallenstein will know what is expected of him, and to be a complete success as a symphonic conductor, he will have to convince his players of his ability. An orchestra can measure in very short order, the musicianship and capacity of a conductor. The conductor is no better than his orchestra will let him be, or than he can make it play, and the greatest conductor in the world can be made to look like a novice if the orchestra wants him to look that way.

It is essential for a conductor to be a thorough musician, to have the ability of imparting his musicianship to the players, and of convincing them that he has something to say through the music that must be conveyed by the orchestra. Of course, if the players so desire, an orchestra such as the New York Philharmonic, by individual and collective artistry, can give a fine performance under a totally inadequate conductor. But players seldom have a desire to do that. Each man is a high class musician and performer. Some are outstanding composers and many are famous soloists in their own right. A few have earned fame as conductors. Therefore they justifiably look with alarm at the approach of a tyro leader.

Imagine what such men think of an incompetent conductor getting up and floundering through a symphony. Many musicians called upon to lead the Philharmonic would, as one writer put it, "either make fools of themselves or else jump off the Brooklyn bridge." And not only the incompetent may suffer. New York is said to be the "graveyard" of conductors. Even top-flight men have been given some harrowing experiences by the Philharmonic when those mighty men have been aggravated by indiscreet words or actions.

You've got to know your stuff and know it well before you try to tell 110 musicians of New York Philharmonic calibre to phrase or bow a certain passage. When it is recalled that the average symphony orchestra player is thoroughly familiar with his parts in at least 200 standard works, and has played them under the greatest conductors of the day, it is remembered that such players know in a moment whether a conductor knows whereof he speaks. And generally he fares very badly if he does not.

Sir Thomas Beecham, the peppery and accomplished English conductor, has some definite ideas on the subject of incompetency in conducting. For those who are interested it may be well to quote from his recently-published book, "A Mingled Chime." He says that, "Indeed, the youthful, or comparatively youthful, musician should not be allowed, except on some rare occasion, to conduct an orchestra of the front rank at all, and if he does I am not sure which of the two parties to the transaction suffers the more from it.

"It is almost impossible that he can teach it anything, and it is more than likely that its accustomed discipline will speedily relax under a leadership that has neither experience nor authority. Further, the unhappy young man will have to decide between the alternatives of assuming an air of omniscience as comical as a child preaching in a cathedral pulpit, or an abnegation of any effort at real direction; either of which will be equally acceptable to that collection of humorists who make up the personnel of nearly every first-class orchestra of the world. For there is no other company of human beings engaged in a communal task which can match it for instant and accurate valuation of competence or incompetence, be it in a conductor, singer, pianist or any other executant whose craft has been daily under its argus eye year in and year out."

• • •

Mrs. James B. Carmichael, general musical director of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society, is leaving next week for Toronto, Chicago and other eastern points on her annual vacation. In Chicago she will visit her parents, and will take advantage of being there to survey available music which might be of use in her orchestral and operatic activities. A similar survey will be made at Toronto. On her return, Mrs. Carmichael will start preliminaries to the society's production next fall of Rudolf Friml's comedy opera, "The Firefly." It is expected that rehearsals will get underway in September.

Residents Prepare Celebrate Annual Civic Holiday

Program of Varied Sports Will Be Feature of Day; Many Plan Visit Country

Edmonton residents are preparing today to enjoy the annual civic holiday, Monday, Aug. 2. The holiday of the first Monday in August has been a time-honored custom here and this year it will be observed by most businesses not engaged in war work.

The holiday was called recently by the city council, and it provides a long week-end "break" from tired store clerks, businessmen and executives. It is the last but one of the week-end holidays before fall and cooler weather sets in, Labor Day, Sept. 6, being the last.

Major event of the holiday will be the Model T jaloppy race, at Borden Park. The first race starts at 2 p.m., with a specially-arranged program commencing at 1:30 p.m. Sponsored in aid of war activities by the Lions' Club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the race between Henry Ford's monumental horseless carriages always draws huge crowds.

For the Model T derby, the Fords have been stripped of all unnecessary tremmeling, and it is said this removal of superfluous tinware has much the same effect as an upswept hair-do on a dowager.

The sight of the skeletonized tin lizzies battling it out amidst groan of grinding gears and wheeze of consumptive carburetors is something "once seen, never forgotten."

ANNUAL PICNIC

Another event of widespread interest Monday is the annual picnic of the Edmonton Social Credit Constituency association, to be held at Victoria Park, starting at 1 p.m. John Guild, president of the association, will be in charge, to which the public is invited. Premier Ernest Manning and N. B. James, Social Credit M.L.A. for Edmonton, will be among speakers at the picnic.

All provincial government offices in Edmonton will close for the day, but Dominion offices will not. A curtailed mail delivery service will be in effect, with one complete delivery to residential districts, and two to business sections. Wickets at the post office will be open from 8 a.m. until noon, and special delivery services, and the receipt and despatch of mails will be as usual.

Nearby lake resorts will see a huge influx of holidayers over the week-end. The extra day will see more citizens than usual thronging their vacation camps, and resort centres plan to take full advantage of the extra crowds. At Seba Beach the annual regatta will be held.

FASTBALL GAMES

Two games of fastball will be played Monday night at Kingsway Park, and a flag competition will feature golfers' activities at the Highland course. The divoters will be out in numbers at the Municipal course, the Country club and the Mayfair course.

Picnics, hikes and canoe jaunts will be enjoyed by citizens who will holiday at home. Then there is the Victory Garden enthusiast, who will seize the opportunity to conduct total war offensive against weeds—something that has been saved up for just such an occasion.

Gibson, Shell Lake, Sask.; E. M. Cammer, Webb, Sask.; M. M. Turnbull, Kinsella. Seated in front are: Sgt. D. M. Clarkson, instructor of precision and military law; CSM. D. J. Pescod, chief instructor; Lt. A. G. Kent, assistant general staff officer representative; Maj. S. M. Welsh, commanding officer M.D. 13 vocational training school; Lt. Col. Alan Elliott, V.D., area commandant; Capt. M. Dorothy Bouchard, officer commanding No. 15 Coy., C.W.A.C.; Mrs. M. Kimball, principal of the training school; Mrs M. Fisher, teacher, and Sgt. J. S. Marples, instructor.

A-R-O-U-N-D THE TOWN

F. Curtis, commissioner of public roads administration, Washington, D.C., will visit Edmonton on Aug. 7.

J. H. Brown, Winnipeg, sales manager Western Steel Products Corporation, Ltd., is a business visitor in Edmonton. He is a guest at the Macodanld hotel.

A city constable encountered some "heavy" money at the corner of 102 avenue and 99 street about 6:45 a.m. Saturday, he reported to headquarters. He handed his find in. It was a cheque for $225.

The committees of the Edmonton Public School Board will meet in the Board room, 510 Civic block, on Tuesday, Aug. 3, at 8 p.m. The meeting of the committees will be followed by a meeting of the School Board.

Edmonton bank clearings for July are $11,624,169 more than for July, 1942, it was learned today. Clearings for the month in 1943 totalled $38,475,345.05, compared with $26,851,176.62 for the same month in 1942.

Speedy air mail service from England has been reported by Mrs. J. E. Ford, 12027 91 street. Mrs. Ford received a letter from her sister, Mrs. P. Bailley, Chester, England, postmarked 5:45 a.m. July 26. The letter was delivered to Mrs. Ford at 9:15 a.m. on July 31, just five days from the time it was posted.

An 80 avenue housewife sought police assistance after being locked out of the house by her husband. She wanted to either be allowed to enter the place or take away her two children by a former marriage. City officers called on the husband, to be told that the complainant had gone out, leaving the children with him. However, if she would quit going out and remaining away until late at night, and look after the youngsters, she would be welcomed back.

22 General Duty Clerks Of Women's Army Corps Are Graduates in City

Congratulating a class of 22 general duty clerks in typing and military procedure from the Canadian Women's Army Corps vocational training school in the former Edmonton Technical school Friday, Lt.-Col. Alan Elliott, V.D., area commandant, stated orderly room work is among the most important duties in the army

Lt.-Col. Elliott addressed the graduates briefly in a short ceremony that marked completion of an eight-weeks course by the young women.

"It is a most difficult thing to get capable clerks for orderly room work," the area commandant observed, adding that it is cause for great satisfaction that so many qualified girls are now being turned out in vocational training classes.

ADDRESSES GRADUATES

Capt. Dorothy Bouchard, officer commanding No. 15 Edmonton Coy., of the C.W.A.C., also spoke a few words in which she wished the graduates every success.

Members of the class are now ready for posting to various military establishments.

No. 1 student in the class was Pte. G. C. Mouritzen of Nokomis, Sask. She had the splendid average of 93 per cent for the whole class period.

Second was Pte. G. W. Brown of Vancouver, with 91 per cent.

Standing of each student was read by Company Sergeant Major D. J. Pescod, chief instructor.

A dance in honor of the graduates was held in the evening.

THOSE PRESENT

Present at the graduation were: Lt.-Col. Elliott, V.D; Maj. S. M Welsh, commanding officer of M.D. 13 vocational training school; Capt. M. Dorothy Bouchard, C.W.A.C., Lt. A. G Kent, assistant to the G.S.O at M.D. 13. Mrs. M. Kimball, principal, Mrs M. Fisher, teacher; Sgt. D. M. Clarkson and Sgt. J. S. Marples.

Getting Around

with

Jack DeLong

Adolph Hitler sent his old Pal Benito Mussolini a nice set of books for a birthday present. If Benito is still on the loose it's just possible he may view his pal's selection as possessing ominous import

For instance, Il Duce is apt to remember that a "famed" book was written by a certain fellow when he was serving a five-year stretch for raising a rumpus he couldn't finish. It is true it turned out to be a best seller but only in one country and now it's a cinch that the author is starting to wish he had never written it.

A cell is a good spot to get caught up in your reading. But the cell Adolph's old pal is apt to find himself in will probably have a lot of padding. That type of prisoner seldom goes in for much heavy reading.

Definite news that the Loyal Edmonton Regiment is in action with the Canadians in Sicily causes one to reflect on the strangeness of this Second World War. Had any of the boys of the Edmonton Regiment been told in September, 1939, that it would be nearly four full years before they would come to grips with the enemy, they would probably have laughed loud and scornfully.

Had they also been told that their first real action would take place in a seldom discussed island in the Mediterranean their laughter would have likely continued.

Most of Edmonton's soldiery of 1939 talked about the Siegfried Line and how hard it might be to crack. Many people spoke openly of fears that Britain and Poland might soon have to fight Russia.

Another recent happening that illustrates the strangeness of this war to Edmonton was the holding of a court martial here by a United States Army military court.

Had we been told a few years ago that this would happen soon in Edmonton we would also have been inclined to toss a few scornful chuckles in the direction of the person making the prediction.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Announcement from Ottawa that a ceiling will be placed on certain fruits and vegetables prompted the Inquiring Reported to seek opinions on this subject so vital to the housewife.

THE ANSWERS

MRS. H. WATERHOUSE, housewife: It is about time that action was taken by the authorities to set prices on fresh fruits and vegetables. The announcement that certain fruits and vegetables will be placed under a price ceiling is welcome, but the action should have been taken at the beginning of the season, not when the season is half way through. At present prices it will be next to impossible for the average wage earner to can or preserve any of [illegible] fruits.

• • •

MRS. A. LITWINOW, housewife: I suppose the housewife should be thankful for small mercies, and the announcement that peaches and other stone fruit is to come under a ceiling price is very welcome, although many of us are positive that this action should have been taken long ago. Present prices of fresh fruit and vegetables seems to be out of all reason.

• • •

MRS. PEARL BATES, housewife: I am sure that all housewives will welcome the announcement that certain fruits and vegetables are to be placed under a price ceiling. It is to be hoped that the ceiling will be low enough to permit the average worker to undertake canning and preserving. Present fruit and vegetable prices [illegible] [illegible] unless you are the possessor of a Victory garden.

John Harrold, Namao Pioneer, Dies at Home

John Harrold, well known old timer of Namao, and one of its earliest settlers, died at his home July 30. He was a resident of that district for 55 years, and was very active in municipal affairs and educational work. He was 67 years old.

He was reeve of the district of Sturgeon for 10 years, served on the council for [illegible] years and was secretary-treasurer of the [illegible] school district for [illegible] years.

Mr. Harrold was also a member of the Canadian Bacon Board and an executive member of the Northern Alberta Pioneers and Old Timers Association.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Jack; two daughters, Mrs. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], and Maxine at home; one sister, Mrs. [illegible] [illegible], Edmonton, and one brother, Donald M., of Namao.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. [illegible] from the Howard & McBride funeral chapel. The Rev. O. B. [illegible] will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Alex Stewart.

Child Is Uninjured When Hit by Car

Running in front of a street car as the vehicle started to move east on Jasper avenue and 100 street about 7:45 p.m. Friday, a small [illegible] was struck and thrown between the tracks. Motorman Edgar Draeger, 10324 95 street, informed city police.

The car was stopped immediately and the operator jumped out, to find that the child apparently had not been injured. He was not able to learn the name of the child, he said, adding that a woman, presumed to be the mother, took charge of him. A passing motorist picked both of them up. No injured child was admitted to any of the city hospitals, it was learned.

NO. FOUR — NO. FIVE — NO. SIX

Above is shown the history of a typical jalopy in the Model T races to be held at the exhibition grounds Monday under the joint sponsorship of the Edmonton Lions Club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Here's the story:

No One. Airman decides to go after big money in Tin Lizzie Derby. Drives into scrap heap for racer. No. Two: He enlists aid of friends to tune up motor—must have smooth, swift action for fest competition. No Three: He leaves for smooth stretch to test engine, worn tires, dilapitated body—against second old "crock". No. Four: Old Lizzie holds together after all these years . . . maintains speed—but rattling knock worried driver. No. Five: Airman and friend take time out to relax (and let Lizzie rest, too) before going into final trial spins. No. Six: Handsome Model T is taken to the shop—to receive colorful paint finish—and is then entered in the big race meet, Monday afternoon!

Seventeen Entries Accepted For "Tin Lizzie" Race Meet On Annual Civic Holiday

With a fine entry list from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin and Calgary, the model "T" race meet was all set Saturday to get underway at the Fair Grounds' race track sharp at 1:30 p.m. on Civic Holiday—that is next Monday. Seventeen cars are entered.

Chugging around the half-mile track, if ancient metal rubber and human flesh will stand the grind, the old Model T's will be "giving their all" for $600 in cash prizes.

The old "flivvers" and their brave jockeys will be going all out for fame and fortune—and at the same time help in Canada's war effort as entire proceeds will augment the war activities funds of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Lions Club—co-sponsors of the event.

For days now, Model T's have been at a premium in Edmonton—and many an entrant had anxious moments trying to pick up a 1925 vintage jalopy—and many other worried moments spent in preliminary grooming and painting the old rattletrap once it was brought under control.

Throughout Northern Alberta, attention is centred on the holiday afternoon event—for it's the first time in history that "a day at the races" meant watching ancient rattletraps vie for winning positions. Spectators are expecting, and will undoubtedly experience, an afternoon of hilarious thrills, spills and even chills.

Plan Conserve Gas Result Lizzie Race

Questioned as to where Model T Fords would obtain gas for Monday afternoon, one race official announced that each entrant must have a ration book for his jallopy, and would pay his own gas requirements. Since the maximum mileage during the race for each car is 30 miles, one Tin Lizzie would use up just two gallons of gas, and the total number of cars, if 20, would not use up more than 40 gallons.

Against the 40 gallons, the committee weighs about 2,000 civilian cars tied up for the afternoon instead of driving into the country or around the city, and if just one gallon of gas a car is saved, 2,000 gallons will be the total saving, the committee says.

Lions Head

G. A. Owen, president of the Lions Club, who has been busy with plans for the Model "T" race meet to be held Monday. The Lions Club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce are joint sponsors of the meet.

Tin Lizzie Derby Has Fine Prizes

Handsome prizes have been donated by Edmonton firms for race fans attending the Tin Lizzie Derby. All admission tickets purchased by 12 p.m. Saturday are numbered. Between races on Monday, a draw will be held, and lucky owners of numbers drawn will receive respectively: a $50 Credit Note dnoated by the Hudson's Bay Company; a $25 Credit Note donated by the Walk-Rite Style Shoppe Ltd. Race programs, too, will be numbered and they can be purchased only at the track, and two prizes will be awarded by draw: Man's or woman's Gruen Wtach, donated by Bert Knowles, handsome black and white vitrolite mantel clock, donated by Western Canada News.

Edmonton Motorcycle Club Plans Series of Spectacular Events During Race Meet

The Edmonton Motorcycle Club, which will stage an exhibition of thrilling, spectacular events for the entertainment of spectators at the Model "T" race meet at the exhibition grounds Aug. 2, is the only organized club of its kind in Edmonton.

Great rivalry has always existed between the Calgary Motor Cycle Club, and the Edmonton Club, and though the competition events which used to take place have been suspended for the duration of the war the members are glad of the chance to display their skill and daring for the benefit of the race meet fans.

The Edmonton Motor Cycle Club had 20 members in 1928 and in 1938 the membership reached its peak of 55. Several of the original members are still active riders although most of the old members have enlisted in all branches of the services. Other riders have taken their places.

The aims of the club are, to be a sporting organization, to give riders benefit of safety programs, and to provide group entertainments.

The events which ordinarily take place annually are racing, hill climb, endurance runs, and group tours.

The proceeds of these events were used to support club rooms and to buy equipment.

DONATE TROPHIES

Many trophies have been donated by Edmonton firms, including the Western Canada Hill climb championship trophy. The riders had the opportunity to test their skill against all comers.

Among the events provided for the entertainment of the race fans at the Model "T" meet is a spectacular flaming board leap where a motorcycle and rider will crash through a solid one-inch board wall which will be a flame of fire.

Another event is a rider leaping off a ramp over seven men. One of the events of a less serious nature and sure to bring roars of approval is a two and a half mile novelty race.

The details of this race are closely guarded secrets.

The names of the present officers and committee members of the club are as follows: Douglas Archer, president; Freddy Furse, vice-president; Robert Cripps, secretary treasurer, Robert Klath, sports committee, Ted Westbrook, Hynes Riesterer, Robert Oliver, Phil Dickinson, Don Chin, Earl Zanzig, and Jerry Jones.

The club choose road captains for each group team or event where necessary.

Close Contests Are Expected At Race Meet

With a large entry list from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin, and Calgary, the model "T" race meet is all set to get underway ta the exhibition grounds race track sharp at 1:30 p.m. on Aug. 2.

Chugging around the half-mile track, if ancient metal, rubber, and human flesh will stand the grind, the old Model T's will be "giving their all" for the $600 in cash prizes.

The old "flivvers" and their brave drivers will be going all out for fame and fortune, and at the same time, help in Canada's war effort, as entire proceeds will augment the war activities funds of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Lions Club, co-sponsors of the event.

For days now, Model T's have been at a premium in Edmonton and many an entrant had anxious moments trying to pick up a 1925 vintage jaloppy and many other worried moments spent in preliminary grooming and painting the old rattletrap, once it was brought under control.

This is the second Model "T" race event in Edmonton and this year as an added attraction the Edmonton Motor Cycle Club is staging some thrilling and spectacular exhibitions. One of these events is a spectacular crash through a flaming board wall by motor cycle and rider. Another is a rider leaping off a ramp over seven men.

Throughout North Alberta, attention is centred on this holiday afternoon event. Spectators are expecting and will no doubt experience, an afternoon of hilarious thrills, spills and even chills.

Co-Operates

Group Captain R. M. Smith, officer commanding No. 3 "M" Depot, with whose co-operation, the Tin Lizzie Derby will be staged on Monday, Edmonton's Civic Holiday. Members of the Royal Canadian Air Force will parade during the afternoon. The band from No. 3 "M" Depot will be in attendance, and airmen will have concessions for hot dogs, pop and candy, to raise funds for the air force recreational activities.

Edmonton's Lions Club Aids Many Community Activities, Also Service Men Overseas

Many elderly residents of this city have reason to express warm, heartfelt thanks to the Edmonton Lions Club, which, for several years, has made its principal activity that of assisting the Sunset Cottages, near Borden Park, built and maintained by civic authorities to provide homes for the physically unfit. The Lions Club is joint sponsor with the Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce, of the Model T Race Meet to be held Monday at the exhibition grounds.

Race Official

Vic Michener, member of the Edmonton Lions Club, who will have charge of race officials at the Model "T" race meet Monday afternoon.

When the Sunset Cottage project was under consideration in 1937 the Edmonton Lions Club offered to assume responsibility for laying out the grounds around the cottages, the care and improvement of lawns and boulevards and in addition to supply occupants of the cottages with any necessary furniture and equipment.

Four duplex cottages were started in the fall of 1937 and completed in February, 1938. Two additional cottages were built in 1941, making provision in all for 12 married couples, each couple having a semi-detached home with living room, bedroom, kitchen and bathroom, with good lawns and vegetable gardens.

When there is a change of occupancy, the Lions Club contacts the folks who are moving in, and supplies anything required to complete furnishing and equipment.

GROUNDS TENDED

The grounds have been regularly cared for by a gardener employed by the Lions Club, and the appearance of the cottages has been materially improved this year by a large number of trees along both roads and down the centre boulevard, while as in past years the ladies of the Lions Club again supplied window boxes filled with flowering plants.

Directors of the Lions Club for the current year are: President, G. A. Owen; 1st vice-president, J. V. Michener; 2nd vice-president, W. Milroy, 3rd vice-president, H. S. Reynolds; secretary, W. D. Irvine; treasurer, W. H. Faulder; tail twister, R. D. Thomson; lion tamer, J. C. F. Millar; director one year, Dr. T. F. Macdonald; director two years, A. Christiansen; director two years, A. G. Kirstine; director two years, W. S. Condy.

During the last year the following activities were performed by the Lions Club of Edmonton.

BALL GAME

Sponsored a baseball game for Britain on Aug. 22 at which $250 worth of War Savings Stamps was sold.

Raised funds through the Model T Race Meet held on Oct. 12.

Members took an active part in the Victory Loan Drive last fall.

Contribution of $300 made to the Lions Britain Child War Victims Fund.

Contribution of $100 made to the "Canada Aid to Russia Fund."

Cigarettes being sent overseas regularly to members and relatives of members.

Contribution of $100 to Navy League of Canada.

Contribution of $100 to Canadian Red Cross.

Members took an active part in Red Cross Drive for funds.

Contribution of $100 to the Edmonton Navy Mothers League.

Contribution of $100 made to the Greek Relief Fund.

Raffle held at each club meeting for War Savings Certificates.

Large Ground Crew Needed Lizzie Races

Anyone suffering the illusion that staging a Model T race meet is just a case of lining up 20 cars and giving the signal "Go" will be enlightened by the story of the list of attendants necessary for Monday's holiday sports program.

Ready for emergencies, there will be ambulances, fire trucks and wrecking trucks on duty, with trained men to give assistance immediately it is required.

Unlike the horse races, where only three judges are necessary, the tin lizzie races must have a judge for every car in each race! A judge is assigned to a car, and holds a card marked off in small squares. As the car he watches passes him on each lap, a square is checked off—and he gives the signal when the car has finished in the race.

Each car will necessarily have mechanic and attendant to keep it in running condition, if possible, when the battle of derelicts gets underway for the afternoon!

HAPPY MOHAMMEDANISM

A legend of Mohammedans teaches that every one of the faithful will be rewarded in the Moslem heaven with a harem of 72 beautiful damsels, endowed with perpetual youth.

Junior Chamber Commerce Gives Valuable Service To Aid National Effort

One of the Edmonton organizations playing an outstandingly important part in the war effort of the city is the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The chamber, under the direction of Jack Weber, has conducted Edmonton's Salvage Campaign since February, 1942.

Last year, the Edmonton branch of the Salvage Division, department of National War Serivces, received the award for the best campaign in the Dominion of Canada.

Again this year the chamber is joint-sponsor with the Lions' Club, of the Model "T" race meet, to be held on Aug. 2. The proceeds of the meet will be used in the war activities of both these organizations.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce under Len Aldridge, has now organized the Junior Service Bureau to [illegible] young Edmonton[illegible] [illegible] to assist in the war effort and to [illegible] the labor shortage [illegible].

Meetings [illegible] second and fourth Wednesday of each month, taking the form of a dinner meeting at the Macdonald.

130 MEMBERS

Edmonton's Junior Chamber of Commerce has 130 members and the officers of the organization are as follows: E. A. [illegible], president; J. R. [illegible], executive vice-president; J. L. McIntyre, vice-president in charge of social activities; R. W. Swanson, vice-president in charge of general committees; Herbert Akitt, vice-president in charge of finance; councillors: G. L. [illegible], J. G. Newton, R. F. [illegible], K. P. [illegible], P. J. [illegible], R. G. [illegible].

College Girls' Fall Wardrobe Will Be Plain

Colleges will be different this fall, and so will college girls' clothes. Fussless and frilless, but interesting and useful, to meet wartime campus activities, is the prediction for college styles by Marian Corey in McCall's for August.

"Girls are still going to college as usual this fall but they won't find the colleges quite as usual when they get there. All the girls are in some kind of war work. They help in the canteens, they roll bandages, they are Nurse's Aides, they sell stamps. In some schools, where the servants have vanished into war factories, the girls are doing much of the housework. Or they are down in the basement with the salvage squad, having a fine time jumping on the tin cans.

"If this is your first year, you are wondering about what clothes to get. But you are not giving it the concentrated attention of other girls in other years. Life is real and life is earnest now, and the last shriek of fashion is of no importance at all. You just want good clothes that will look all right on you, and last.

"The thing that strikes us about college clothes this year is, they are beautifully plain. No fixed-up stuff or a lot of fussy things. Every good college wardrobe starts off with a boxy coat. It is the campus darling and no girl should be without one. If you can have two coats you will have a boxy one for campus and a reefer for best. But you can get along with just the box coat. Thousands do.

"The next 'must' is a suit—you can't go to college without one. Any tailored suit will do. You will need a good separate skirt and all the sweaters you can lay your hands on. If your college is in the northeast and hasn't converted to coal, you will be wearing sweaters three at a time as the girls did last year, not to mention going to bed in them.

"Two tailored dresses should be enough, one in crepe and one in wool. These are for week-ends and ordinary dress-up. They are shirtwaisters, dirndls, or jumpers. There is much less use of long evening frocks now, but there will certainly be some functions at which a long informal dress is the correct thing. But mainly, you will wear an afternoon dress for evening. One is enough. Add to this list, slacks, an extra jacket, warm sleeping pajamas, a woolly robe, and for housework, a pinafore.

"Our choice for your boxy coat has raglan shoulders, the easiest to slip on over a suit. A checked suit is suggested, single-breasted in accordance with the new L-85 regulations. A good-looking separate skirt is in semi-dirndl style. Bright red jersey and unlined, is our idea of a very special extra jacket. The two dresses may be a wool dirndl that buttons on a slant, and a jumper tailored when worn with a sternly tailored shirt, and a date dress when worn with its own frilly blouse. Grey flannel slacks, should be correctly cuffless, and mannishly pleated and creased. A red velveteen afternoon-evening frock should be simple, as plain as any, but definitely a dress for very best.

Whether to college or not, those who are ambitious will start their winter coats now. Persian Lamb cloth is really easy to make. Cut three big pieces, two long facings, add sleeves, and it is almost finished. The most mannish of all the boxy coats, the neckline can button up snugly, the buttons are under a fly, and the pockets are stitched to simulate patch ones. It's a nice idea to make your daughter's school coat exactly like your own boxy toss-on. When you take her to school—or anywhere—you are a pair.

"Necklines should be interesting. One frock is a dressy version of the shirtfrock with a collarless neck, a panelled bodice, soft pleats. A 'different' V neck runs up at the side and back—this makes it slim. It is probably the most ecoming neckline there is. One nice thing about a roll-back neckline is, you can make it lower or higher, as you like.

"For the girl with a super figure, there is a super princess frock in tested rayon crepe. It has princess lines with new touches, having draped pockets and soft pleats; different neckline, too.

"The sailor dress looks new and different now that it is being made in soft blues instead of the inevitable navy. Checks are the thing for fall, big ones. R.A.F. blue is destined to be the favorite wool dress color for fall and winter."

Lieut. Charles S. Crook, III, U.S. Engineers, and Mrs. Crook, who were married at Sacred Heart Parish hall Friday evening. Mrs. Crook is with the American Red Cross in Edmonton, stationed at the U.S. Army Air Base. Before her marriage she was Miss Gertrude Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Nichols of Des Moines, Iowa. Lieut. Crook is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Crook, Baltimore, Md.

American Red Cross Girl U.S. Lieutenant Wed Here

SACRED Heart Parish hall was the scene of an interesting wedding Friday at 6:30 p.m., when Miss Gertrude Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Nichols of Des Moines, Iowa, and Lieut. Charles S. Crook, III, U.S. Engineers, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Crook, Baltimore, Md., exchanged marriage vows. Chaplain Pearson, U.S.A.A.F., officiated.

For her marriage the bride chose an afternoon dress of dawn rose crepe, fashioned on princess lines. A tiny black silk hat trimmed in matching rose and a corsage of orchids and gardenias completed her wedding ensemble.

Miss Jeannette Smith, of the American Red Cross, was bridesmaid. Her frock was a street length model of featherweight acquamarine wool. She wore a tiny black fabric hat and a corsage of pink sweetpeas and roses.

Best man was James A. Quigley, assistant field director for the American Red Cross at the army air base.

After the ceremony, a reception to more than 100 guests was held at the Army Nurses' Home, where summer blossoms were used to decorate the rooms. The wedding table was set with a white lace cloth and decorated with clusters of flowers. A tiered wedding cake centred the table, flanked by tall white tapers.

After a short wedding trip to Lake Louise, the couple will make their home in Edmonton temporarily.

Mrs. Crook is well known in Edmonton where she is a member of the American Red Cross, in charge of the club at the U.S. Army Air Base.

'Miss Canadas' Conduct Final Street Sales

Forty-four youthful "Miss Canadas" volunteered their services to conduct a final street sale in support of Edmonton's "Stamp Out the U-Boat" campaign Thursday. Their efforts showed gratifying results with sales totalling $[illegible] reported to Campaign headquarters at the end of the day.

In the absence of Mrs. R. Kirkpatrick, street sales convenor, Miss Anne Saulit assisted by Miss K. Kully and Mrs. W. Prosser were in charge of the personnel.

Miss Mary Clark took top honors by selling stamps valued at $28. Miss Joan McColl was second with $24 and Miss Winnie Johnston was third with $18.20.

THOSE WHO HELPED

The following is the list of all who participated in this final street sale.

Miss Jean Hemphill, Miss Evelyn Hornby, Miss Donna Gail Richards, Miss Louis McIntyre, Miss Barbara MacMillan, Miss Priscilla Scott, Miss Sheila Mackintosh, Miss Beryle Swingle, Miss Glen MacDonald, Miss Kay Kully, Miss Mary Clerk, Miss Patsy Baker, Miss Phyliss Rowell, Yvonne Goodwin, Miss Kay McAskill, Miss Winnie Johnston, Miss Gwen Swingle, Miss Margaret Stanton, Miss Audrey Hibbert, Miss Eileen Davies, Miss Janet Matheson, Miss Isabell Eliot, Miss Joan McColl, Miss Shirley Beeny, and Miss Doreen Pillet.

Miss Marian Scragg, Miss Doreen Law, Miss Bonnie Janes, Miss Betty Williams, Miss Mary Haggerty, Miss Isabell Elliott, Miss Mary Tacher, Miss Lorraine Skeitch, Miss Lois Greenough, Miss Agnes Bartleman, Miss Joyce Neary, Miss Joan Hustler, Miss Barbar Lippsey, Miss Avis Gallagher, Miss Pat Koch, Miss Jean Hepburn, Miss Doris Saunders, Miss Beverly Green and Miss Pat Smith.

'Re-Make Tour' Comes to End

OTTAWA, July 31.—(CP)—Canadian women are making old clothes into new clothes, and getting a real thrill out of doing it. That's the word of Mrs. H. M. Aitken of Toronto and, having talked to 70,000 Canadian women about making old things do, she should rate as a national authority.

Kate Aitken as she is known to thousands of Canadian women has just ended a tour which started last March. With her secretary, two big wardrobe trunks and a couple of cartons she went from coast to coast with a show called "remake review." In the trunks and cartons were 42 outfits, all made from old clothes.

The show was a success in the 60 places it played to 70,000 people.

MET THE PRESS

Today, when Miss Aitken met the press to describe the "remake" project which is sponsored by the Prices Board, reporters met a trim, slight, grey-haired woman who looked as if she might be wearing clothes she had bought in New York where she visited yesterday.

Actually, she said with a smile, her grey suit was made over from a man's suit, and she had worn it on her tour. The hat—a smart, narrow-brimmed straw trimmed with white—used to be a wide-brimmed affair.

The possibilities loom large when Mrs. Aitken talks about the "2,100,000 suits that men in the forces have left beind, that the moths are going to get if we don't."

COLORFUL SOMBRERO

RIGHT: Almost a miniature of the sombreros worn by the typical Mexican or "charro" is this hat of pink felt, trimmed with chartreuse and fuchsia ribbon laced in and out of the "deep-dish" brim, which is bound with fuchsia velvet. At the back is a half-snood made of stiff fuchsia veiling, with small bows of chartreuse and fuchsia velvet ribbon.

For the FIRST time—
THE STORY BEHIND STALINGRAD!
The Germans paid a terrific price at Stalingrad and the tide turned for the Allies. But Stalingrad was only one phase of a greater drive the Germans intended. That drive might have ended the war in Russia. Why it failed is told in MOSCOW DATELINE, the sensational new best-seller by Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press Chief in Russia.
MOSCOW DATELINE tells the story behind Stalingrad and the whole Russian war to date. It is a "must" for every American. Watch for it in this newspaper soon.

Honored

Hon. Alfred J. Hooke, provincial secretary, who was honored at a complimentary banquet at Rocky Mountain House Thursday evening. Two hundred persons from all parts of that constituency attended the banquet, which marked Mr. Hooke's elevation to cabinet rank in the provincial government.

Constituents Pay Honor to Minister

Hon. Alfred Hooke, provincial secretary, was honored at a banquet at Rocky Mountain House Thursday night, when 200 persons from all parts of that constituency gathered to compliment him on his recent promotion to the provincial cabinet. A feature of the banquet was presentation to the guest of honor of a cinnamon bear rug, by H Stelfox, of Rocky Mountain House.

The banquet was held under auspices of the Rocky Mountain House Board of Trade. Speakers included W. Teskey, Board president, Mayor W. J. T. Strong; John Shanks, manager of Nordegg mine, and James MacQueen, Red Deer, who represented the Board of Trade of that city. All speakers tendered congratulations to the new cabinet minister.

Mr. Hooke, who represents the Rocky Mountain House constituency in the legislature, made suitable reply to the speakers. He was accompanied on the trip to his riding by D. E. C. Campbell, government publicity director.

Stamp Campaign Draws to End In This City

An estimated $3,000 worth of War Savings Stamps was sold here during the observance of "Fifteen Minutes for Canada," Friday afternoon, officials reported Saturday.

The plan was one of the several special events being held during the closing days of the five weeks "Stamp Out the U-Boat" campaign. At the sound of whistles and sirens at 3 o'clock Friday the majority of Edmonton's places of business stopped work.

A small store on the South Side reported sales totalling $20 during the quarter hour.

In one store every clerk wore a $10 booklet of stamps around her neck during the day. The "Miss Canadas" representing the Junior Service Bureau at eight office buildings reported sales totaling $250.

IN ONE HOME

Senior Captain Janet Matheson of the Junior Service Bureau house-to-house campaign reported the purchase of $640 worth of stamps in a west end home.

The lucky sales girl was Helen Lilly now a strong contender for the maximum prize being offered the top seller by Edmonton's three leading dairies. Northen Alberta Dairy Pool, Woodland Dairy and Edmonton City Dairy.

Another leading contender for the major prize is Maralyn Weinlos who sold $480 worth of stamps to an elderly lady in the West end Thursday.

The American Women's Service Club took the lead among Edmonton organizations Friday by purchasing a complete depth charge. Officials requested that the depth charge and accompanying stamp-o-gram chart be forwarded to the H.M.C.S. Athabascan.

Another purchase was reported from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Butler, 9216 89 street, where two year old twins, Sandra and George, produced five hundred pennies to complete their third and fourth folders during the campaign.

A resident of Winterburn, P. L. Wild joined the exclusive group of individual-purchasers Friday afternoon by investing in a depth charge.

Concluding events of Edmonton's five week campaign will be held Saturday night at the corner of Jasper and 101 street when a minstrel show by the All Saints' Junior Chorus will be given. The show is scheduled to commence at 8 p.m. on the open air stage adjacent to the Stamp Bar. A dance will follow the stage show.

Salvation Army Plans Establish North Service

The Salvation Army is to establish operations at Dawson Creek B.C., it was stated Saturday by Brig. S. Ursaki, divisional commander for the Army in Alberta, in announcing Adjutant C. Clitheroe has been posted to the northern British Columbia boom town.

Adjutant Clitheroe, who leaves Edmonton Monday for his new work, comes from northern Ontario, where he was an "outrider" for the Salvation Army, covering an area of 150,000 square miles by airplane, dog-team, snowshoe, ski and canoe. He was also stationed at Toronto and Simcoe, engaged in social service work.

Brig Ursaki said it was hoped to establish a reading, writing and rest room for troops and laborers working in the Dawson Creek area. Army services would be held in the reading room in the evenings, he said. If the situation warrants a canteen may be opened later.

Gallant Greeks In Last Appeal For Your Help

This is definitely the last day of the Greek War Relief campaign to raise funds to buy sorely needed supplies for the people of the homeland. Through the generosity of citizens in Edmonton and surrounding areas, nearly $32,000 has been collected, $2,000 more than the minimum objective.

You still have time to add your donation. Every penny raised will help some starving, disease-ridden Greek to survive.

The Edmonton area has responded nobly to the appeal, and each donor will have the satisfaction of knowing that he has helped this effort.

Donations may be sent to J. G. Nickerson, manager, Edmonton main Branch, The Royal Bank of Canada. Remember today is the last day—do your share to help one of our allies.

Donations to the Greek War Relief fund after Saturday should be sent directly to the Greek War Relief headquarters, 1507 Royal Bank Building, 360 St. James Street West, Montreal. No donations can be accepted by the Edmonton committee after July 31 unless postmarked not later than that date.

Two-Alarm Fire Damages Foundry

Two-alarm fire caused about $500 damage to the foundry building of the Coutts Machinery Company Limited, at 10563 95 street, Friday evening, all damage practically being confined to the roof and covered by insurance.

First alarm was sent in at 7:54 p.m., and a second at 7:58. Two lines of hose were used to fight the flames that rose about 20 feet into the air. Cause of the blaze was stated to have been from an over-heated smoke-stack.

Last person to leave the building, it was learned, was Lawrence Fee, foreman, 10268 87 street, who left about 6:30 p.m. Owner of the equipment is T. H. Coutts, 9343 107 avenue. There was no one in the building at the time the fire started.

The Coutts company took over the building, which is owned by the city, in 1928, it was learned.

The all-out signal came at 8.12 p.m. Fire halls 2 and 5 responded.

War Labor Board Will Sit at Coast

Sittings of the Western War Labor Board will be held at Vancouver starting on Monday, Aug. 16, it was announced Saturday by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor, chairman.

Request for board sittings at the Pacific coast city was made by Carl E. Berg, Edmonton, representative of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Alberta Federation of Labor at board sittings held here early this week.

He asked the board to withhold decisions on wages and working conditions affecting trade union membership until representations could be made to the board. He stressed that membership of several Pacific coast unions desired to make individual representations, and suggested that a more comprehensive submission could be made if sittings were held at Vancouver.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The late Ralph E. Richards of Detroit used to say, "If you make every grand slam you bid, you are not bidding enough, and if you defeat every contract you double, you are not doubling enough."

Today's hand was played in a 17-table duplicate game. Thirteen of the North-South pairs bid the grand slam, some in spades, some in hearts and a couple in no trump.

If the spade suit broke, seven no trump would make. Seven hearts look like the safest contract.

North's jump to two spades is a slam invitation, which South accepts with his bid of three diamonds. North's three hearts shows heart support. Four clubs is a control bid by South. North's jump to five spades is to show a good solid spade suit, but South denies the possibility of playing the hand at spades with his bid of five no trump. North's bid of seven hearts gives South a choice of passing seven hearts or bidding seven spades or seven no trump.

You can see that at hearts, East has to make the queen of hearts, while at spades West is bound to make a spade trick. At no trump the declarer has to give a spade trick up quickly or he will be set two tricks.

NOW BARON DOWDING

LONDON. — (CP) — Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, the man who "won the Battle of Britain," has taken the title of Baron Dowding of Bentley Priory in the county of Middlesex.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Most Mothers Ignore Home-Making Career

Daughters Should Be Able to Support Selves But, Also, Even in This Day and Age, Need Know How to Cook

DEAR MISS DIX: I wonder if a lot of us modern mothers, who have tried so hard to give our daughters what we call every "advantage," are not finding out that we missed teaching them many of the homely things they need more than they do the higher education? I, for instance, sent my daughter through college, and saw that she had dancing lessons and music lessons and lessons in appreciation of this and that, and that she was taught a profession; but now that she is about to be married I suddenly realize that she does not know how to sew or cook, or market, or run a budget, and I am wondering if I have not failed in preparing her for life, after all?
A MOTHER.

Answer: I think that you have, and that the mistake that you have made is one that most of the mothers of today are making. They seem to ignore entirely the fact that wifehood and motherhood are women's predestined careers now, just as they have been from time immemorial, and that while it is true that the average girl may work at some trade or profession for a few years after she leaves school, she soon gives it up for marriage. Yet mothers spend their time and money having their daughters taught some occupation that they only follow for a year or two, but make no effort to prepare them for the work they will have to do the balance of their lives.

In the past every girl was Mother's little helper from the time she was big enough to stand on a box and help wipe the dishes. She was taught how to sew and to cook, how to sweep and dust, and all the details that go to the making and keeping of a comfortable home. But nowadays from the time girls are out of kindergarten they are so busy with their home work and their clubs and their parties that they have no time for any domestic duties, and they grow up practically ignorant of what the inside of a kitchen looks like.

Besides, Mother is trying to save her girls from all the drudgery she can, so she shoulders the whole family burden and lets them keep their finger nails polished red while her hands are soggy from dishwater and calloused from scrubbing.

Also, she holds to the curious theory that while a girl has to study typing and stenography if she wants to be a secretary, or get a hospital training if she wants to be a nurse, or take a course in selling if she wants to be a saleswoman, a knowledge of cooking will come to her by inspiration as soon as the marriage ceremony is said over her.

Hence the average girl, who also thinks that running a house must be a job that any moron can pull off since Mother does it so well; goes into marriage without the slightest preparation for the role she is undertaking, and by the time she has learned to make bread that is edible and coffee that doesn't taste like poison she has ruined many a dollar's worth of good food and shed many a tear, and wished that she had practiced more on the gas range and less on the piano.

Also, she is lucky if she hasn't lost her husband, for the first disillusion that many a young husband gets is when he finds out that while his bride was all his heart would wish as a sweetheart, she is a rank failure as a wife, and that the little home he set up with such dreams of happiness and peace and pies like Mother used to make is a place of turmoil and discomfort and food that would kill an ostrich, and that half of his salary is going into the garbage can.

It is all right to give girls the best possible education. It is being prudent to teach them some way of supporting themselves if they are never lucky enough to get a man for a meal ticket. But it is also common sense to teach them how to cook and sew and run a house, for these are things that every woman is going to need to know at some time during her life, no matter whether she is rich or poor, married or single.

DESERTED

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a man of 32, married nearly eleven years and have two children. After all of these years of happily married life my wife has decided that she does not know whether she loves me or not. Throughout most of the depression years she helped me get started in business and sacrificed herself to my future, and I am now a success. Things I could not afford to give her before, I am able to give her now, but her attitude towards me and her absolute disinterest in my business and our home, even in the children, worries me.

About six weeks ago she deserted me to join the WAVES under an assumed name, but she was turned down and two days later returned home, and I forgave her, but her conduct broke my heart. Now she demands that I allow her to go away alone for two months to find out if she really loves me. I refused, but consented to let her go to work. She keeps all of her money and has lost all interest in me, although a spark of motherhood is still evident.

The only thing that keeps her from going away again is my threat of having her arrested for deserting her children, but to hold on to a woman with a threat goes against my grain and I only do it because of the children.

Is it possible that my wife will change and make our home happy once more? A BROKEN-HEARTED HUSBAND.

Answer: Very likely, but your only chance to hold her is to let her go, if you get what I mean. Sometimes women get fed up with domesticity, just as men do. They think they have ceased to love their husbands. Their children have gotten on their nerves. They are weary of the routine of home duties and feel that they will perish if they cannot break away from it all.

The only remedy for the situation is to let them go and get it out of their systems. A pent-up longing is like a dammed stream, it grows greater and greater all the time until at last it bursts the confining wall and sweeps principles, and the inhibitions of a lifetime, and affections away, and does damage that can never be repaired.

So my advice to you would be to let your wife go and have the couple of months' soul-communing that she desires. Tell her you will also do some heart-probing while she is gone and see how you stand on that matter of continuing your marriage. Don't write to her while she is gone. Don't let her hear from the children. Let her find how the lovelessness and homelessness that seem so alluring to her now would be if she were separated from you and the kids and all the old ties. And I think that you will find that she will come back and be glad to slip into her old place in the home.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Rolled oats and 100 per cent. wholewheat flour are particularly important in wartime menus because they are rich in vegetable protein. Regular rolled oats and quick-cooking rolled oats contain 16.9 per cent. protein, and 100 per cent. wholewheat flour contains 13.12 per cent. protein.

"Let's make pigs of ourselves. Sounds rather unmannerly, and almost impossible in the face of growing food shortages," says Charlotte Adams, popular magazine and radio authority on food. "However, in pushing the pig away from the trough, and taking over his rations such as oats, corn, etc., that's in a measure what we propose to do. But there is going to be a difference between our consumption of grains and the porker's. We're going to make a new man out of cereal. It's going to be more than breakfast food for us—it's going to be varied—good to eat—and good for us."

Mrs. Adams, author of "You'll Eat It Up," selects these two desserts to brighten up your war menus.

OATMEAL-APPLE GLAZE

Two cups cooked oatmeal, 3 firm, tart apples, ½ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup shortening, cinnamon.

Pare and core apples and cut into slices a half inch thick. Melt sugar and shortening over a low flame and glaze the apple slices well in this. In a well-greased baking dish, place a layer of cooked oatmeal. Cover with a layer of apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Continue layering until ingredients are used up. Bake in 375 deg. F. oven 25 minutes. Serve with thin cream.

POOR MAN'S SWEET

Two cups cooked wheat cereal, 1 cup milk, 1-3 cup molasses, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon shortening.

Mix ingredients well. Pour into greased, buttered baking dish and bake 40-50 minutes in 375 deg F oven.

Monday's Menu

(Eat the Basic 7 Every Day)

BREAKFAST: Sliced peaches, ready-to-eat wholewheat cereal, enriched toast, butter, coffee, milk.

LUNCH: Tomatoes stuffed with creamed left-over vegetables, toasted oatmeal bread, butter, stewed ruhbarb, sliced blueberry sandwich bread, tea, milk.

DINNER: Tomato juice, corn and green pepper souffle, crisp bacon baked potatoes, creamed watercress, enriched bread, butter, poor man's sweet, tea, milk.

Poultry is one of the Basic Seven Foods.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Father: "We're playing safe and nailing these slats around the open porch rail until baby is old enough to understand the danger of falling.

Father: "I believe there is a special providence that looks after children. Anyway, falls don't seem to hurt them as they do adults."

To rely wholly on the kindness of providence without using reasonable precaution, is to invite accidents.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

There are few influences upon a child's own appetite so profound as the likes and dislikes toward food displayed by the parents.

The attitude of a parent may be of frank dislike for some food, or they may be such subleties as a curled lip or an indifferent shrug when mealtimes or food are mentioned. In either case, the child takes his cue from the parents. One mother who admitted she had never cared for food had a child who was a persistent feeding problem. It could hardly be otherwise.

Unless a parent is made ill by eating some food, she should consider it her obligation to express an interest in it. Some small portion of every food, regardless of whether it is well liked, should be accepted and eaten and no comment made unless it could be a flattering one.

The influences of these attitudes communicate themselves to the children. Mealtimes become enjoyable interludes in the day, what one has for dinner becomes exciting, not just food to be eaten and the whole ceremony somewhat of a [illegible]

Men, so it has always seemed to me, suffer most from the pampering they have received from their mothers, and display the strongest food dislikes, or become the most ardent gourmets.

Women who are imaginative cooks enjoy food an make no bones of it. But the great majority of women, fearful of their figures, get little pleasure out of food and work to curb rather than encourage their appetites.

In such cases the children, seeing the indifferent eye of the mother cast at the array of food, or hearing the caustic comment from the father about "that custard stuff not being fit to eat, follow the same pattern.

It's a pattern easy to adopt since food dislikes themselves may become distinguishing marks of personality. The persons who can't or won't eat this or that make up an army.

Since the choice of food is limited today by price, availability and food coupons, it behooves all of us to adopt more appreciative attitudes toward the food we can have. It's true we may all be eating foods toward which we are relatively indifferent. It won't do us any harm to stop pampering ourselves. We are, despite food restrictions, still the best fed nation in the world and we should imbue our children with that idea.

We can enjoy food. We can appreciate it. Being well fed is not a fad, it is a full time job of parents to know food values and then, when those foods which represent them are served at the family table, to take an interest in them with relish and enjoyment. The influence on the appetites of the children will be incalculable.

Our leaflet, "Foods for Young Children," offers recipes for the usual foods found in the diets of children. It may be had by sending a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

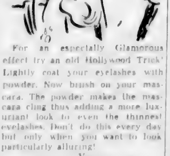
Minute Make-Ups



For an especially Glamorous effect try an old Hollywood Trick! Lightly coat your eyelashes with powder. Now brush on your mascara. The powder makes the mascara cling thus adding a more luxuriant look to even the thinnest eyelashes. Don't do this every day but only when you want to look particularly alluring!

What To Do

The "visiting season" is upon us, and every prospective hostess should remember how to make a guest comfortable.

First, have a comfortable cool uncluttered guest room with good reading lamp, desk and current magazines.

Second, consult your guests' wishes on entertainment, meals and routine.

Third, plan in advance so you can spend a maximum of time with [illegible]

My Day

WASHINGTON.—Like everybody else in the United States, we were excited by the news which came through yesterday afternoon announcing the resignation of Mussolini. One can not help hoping that it means the beginning of the end and shows a weakening of the dictators' belief in themselves, which is certainly the first step to ultimate [illegible]

At breakfast this morning two people, who have seen Italian prisoners, one in this country and one in Africa, were talking [illegible] I was amused to learn how friendly their attitude is. There is something in the Italian people which I think [illegible] men [illegible] prisoners sang at their work, how well they worked and how relieved they were to be out of the war.

Other people who have seen them in this country tell me they are most appreciative of the country, of their opportunities and their treatment. In Africa, apparently, one of their chief joys is food. They seem to be getting more food than they have had for a long, long time. The old saying that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach seems to hold good for these prisoners of war, for they do not even try to escape.

Let us hope that we can make real allies of the Italian people in the cause of future [illegible] they are a nation which really wants peace. [illegible] to build something really dynamic among them, which will bring us closer together and keep us working for an ideal in the future, that will preclude the rise of dictators and make impossible the preparation for another war.

The vice-president's speech in Detroit yesterday afternoon had many statements in it which we are going to think about in the days to come. I particularly like his statement "We seek a peace that is more than just a breathing space between the death of an old tyranny and the birth of a new one." Again, "We [illegible] ly abroad and condone race riots at home." More important than anything else for the future is the presentation of three outstanding peace responsibilities:

1—The responsibility for the en[illegible]

3—The responsibility for planning for world co-operation.

Repeated experiments have demonstrated that fear, anger, or worry retard the secretion of digestive fluids and may be instrumental in producing indigestion. When these feelings are present for only a short time they may interfere with the preceding meal or with the next meal, however, there are many people who allow their minds to dwell on these destructive levels most of the time and who [illegible] difficulties [illegible]

The unfortunate part of it is that once the unpleasant feelings have induced indigestion the digestive unhappiness will in turn produce feelings of depression, lack of cheerfulness and a generally gloomy outlook on life. These in their turn further interfere with digestive harmony and in this way a vicious circle is set up. Once this circle is started it continues unless broken in upon at some point.

While the mental causes have a great deal to do with indigestion, I believe that all types of digestive disorders are made worse by wrong eating habits. The trouble may come from using foods which are hard to digest or it may arise from the use of wrong combinations of food. Poorly prepared food, food eaten hurriedly and food improperly chewed may also serve as the starting point for stomach disturbances.

The ordinary symptoms of indigestion are only too familiar to the patient who learns to watch for them in fearful expectancy. An acute attack may begin with a feeling of heaviness, bloating, or with rapid beating of the heart or a burning sensation. The patient may be [illegible] feel nauseated or may have a sudden sharp chill. If he presses the stomach with the fingers, he may be able to find a tender area. Actual pains of a colicky nature may be present, but a vague sense of discomfort [illegible]

The acute attacks may [illegible] from time to time being brought on [illegible] meal or by excitement or nervous strain. Eventually the patient is likely to find that the stomach is [illegible] and that most of his meals cause some distress. Such distress, when continued is bound to lead to a depressed mental state which as I have already explained, produces [illegible]

If you now suffer from trouble in the slightest degree you should change your eating habits and your thinking habits [illegible] digestive organs will find that the simple plan of substituting good habits of eating for harmful ones will bring results so quickly as to be astounding. Those who have already [illegible] for [illegible] and [illegible] the type of trouble which has developed.

One with a normal digestion should not be conscious of [illegible] a meal [illegible] cheerful as is normally the case when one has eaten a good [illegible] to bre[illegible] ing habits and see if you can't develop such a good digestive power that you do not know what it is to have an upset stomach.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

WINNIPEG, July 31—(CP)—Wheat futures lost 1½-¼ cents a bushel today on Winnipeg grain exchanage in a dull session. July closed at $1.08¾.

Southern interests offered fair support in the October option. Trade was not large.

The exchange will be closed Monday in observance of the Civic holiday.

No export business was reported in Canadian wheat or flour. Only odd cars of lower grades were traded in the cash wheat market to eastern feeders. Transactions in cash coarse grains were restricted to a few cars of oats and barly for shipment south.

Small routine trades were reported in rye futures, along with some local and inter-market spreading. There was no trading in oats aind barley futures.

Country wheat marketings yesterday mounted to 1,391,000 bushels compared with 1,745,000 bushels last year.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—[illegible] brought another wave of selling in today's stock market and leaders dropped fractions to around 2 points, with some issues off 3 to 5. The cumulative losses added up to about the widest setback in any week since the market started on its long climb in April of last year. Losses were extended during the second hour as turnover increased for a total of around 700,000 shares for the session.

Social Crediters To Picnic Monday

Annual picnic of the Edmonton Social Credit Constituency Association will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at Victoria Park.

The picnic will be under direction of John Guild, president of the constituency association, and speakers will include Premier Ernest Manning and N. B. James, Social Credit M.L.A. for Edmonton.

A feature of the picnic will be a "popularity contest", in which nine comely young ladies will compete. Musical selections and dancing will be given by outstanding Edmonton artists. Prizes will be offered for all competitive events.

An invitation is extended to all citizens to attend the picnic. Light refreshments and hot water may be obtained.

Firm Undertone On Chicago Mart

CHICAGO, July 31—(AP)—Buying by milling interests gave a firm undertone to the wheat market today after prices had slumped at the opening on further weakness in securities and indications the Italian situation was heading for a week-end climax.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ¼ higher. Oats were unchanged to ¼ lower, and rye was ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher.

Livestock

EDMONTON LIVESTOCK

Weekly report for the week ending July 30.

Receipts—	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Today	260	51	196	55
Week	1706	397	1291	411

Trading was active throughout the past week, with prices fully steady with the previous week's close. Receipts were more liberal, consisting, however, largely of plain and in-between kinds. One load of strictly choice grain fed weighty steers were outstanding, a few of which realized a new high of $13 for the season. The bulk of the good to choioce steers sold from $12 to $12.50 per cwt. Good to choice heifers traded from $11 to $11.50 per cwt. with one strictly choice topping $12 per cwt. The bulk of the good light cows sold from $9.25 to $9.75 with a few heifery kinds topping $10. Good heavy cows were mostly from $8.75 to $9.25. All grassers were fully 50c per cwt. lower than grain feds. Bulls opened steady, declining later and at the close of trading were from $8 to $9.25.

The following are the quotations:

CATTLE—

Good-choice fed calves	$12.00	to	12.50
Good-choice h'y steers	12.25	to	12.75
Good-choice light steers	12.00	to	12.50
Fair to medium steers	11.00	to	11.75
Common to fair steers	9.00	to	11.00
Good-choice lt. heifers	11.00	to	11.50
Fair to medium heifers	10.00	to	10.50
Common to fair heifers	8.50	to	10.00
Good-choice light cows	9.25	to	10.00
Good-choice heavy sows	8.75	to	9.25
Fair to medium cows	7.75	to	8.25
Common to fair cows	7.00	to	7.75
Canners and cutters	5.00	to	6.50
Bulls	8.00	to	9.00

Stockers and feeders of suitable quality were in fairly good demand. Better quality light steers selling up to $11 with the ordinary kinds from $8 to $10.50. Stock heifers $9.50 down. Stock cows $8 down.

Veal calves steady, with the bulk of the good handyweights $12 to $13, with extreme tops $13.50.

Hogs unchanged. Basic for shipment $15.90, locals $15.40-$15.50, sows live weight $9.75, plants basic $15.40-$15.50; sows dressed $12.40 flat. Feeders on the stockyards average weights $11.75. Choice light feeders up to $13.

The lamb and sheep market opened steady but declined sharply, due to the ceiling price and at the close of trading the following prices prevailed: Good to choice handy weights $13 to $13.50, yearlings $7.50 down and ewes $5.50 down.

Notice—Monday, August 2nd, the stockyards will be closed for trading, but receipts will be taken care of in the usual manner.

AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 31—(AP)—Hogs, 5,300. Top $14¼.

Cattle 300, calves none. Choioce to prime fed steers $16.85, best light yearlings $16¼, fed heifers $14-$15.60, cutter cows $9¼, beef cows $10½-$12½, heavy sausage bulls $14½, choice vealers $15¾.

Sheep, 600. Native spring lambs $14.85, medium to choicoe $13½-$15, top yearlings $14.10, medium to choice $12¾-$14.10.

Before the Magistrate

Former Fascist Leader Ordered to Stand Trial

Charles B. Crate, former Fascist leader in Canada, was committed to stand trial at the next sitting of the supreme court by Magistrate Harold L. Hawe, K.C., Friday afternoon, on three charges of breach of the War Measures Act. Evidence given on one charge, that of advocating Fascist policies in Canada, was permitted to be applied to the others, both of unlawfully making utterances likely to be prejudicial to the safety of the state and the successful prosecution of the war.

R. E. Ansley, M.L.A. for Leduc, told the court that towards the end of an interview with the accused on June 4 last, held in the legislative building in Edmonton, the latter had asked about writing on the Jewish question in the Social Credit publication, "Today and Tomorrow".

The witness stated he had told him that the committee would fully disagree with him and would not publish the articles.

There had been some suspicions about the accused before the board agreed to meet him, continued the witness, and they had checked with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. It was found that the authorities had a record of the accused's activities with the Fascist movement, and not being too sure of his whereabouts, the authorities asked to be informed so they could keep track of him.

It was suggested by defence counsel, R. Fred Jackson, that the board had met his client knowing he was a Fascist, and that nothing that the accused might say could influence their impression that he was a Fascist. They did not need that conference to know what the accused's belief was.

A. V. Bourcier, M.L.A. for Lac St. Anne, told the court that he could substantiate every statement made by the previous witness, but added that he was there as a "listener" although he did take part in the Jewish discussion. This came when he asked about the accused's remark concerning whether the persecution of the "little Jew" around the corner should be continued.

Forms of socialism as it existed in Germany, Russia and Italy were discussed, continued the witness, who stated that Crate had spoken of his preference for the kind of socialism in effect in Italy until recently.

He knew htat the interview with Crate had been entered into with the full knowledge of the R.C.M.P., said the witness, adding that he had been spoken to, personally, concerning it.

F. D. Shaw, M.P. for Red Deer, stated he had "an inkling just before the interview", that the authorities knew of the meeting.

Detective-Cpl. J. G. Ozarko, R.C.M.P., quoted pasages from letters and publications found in a search of the accused's premises, in one of which the prisoner had referred to himself as editor of the "Thunderbolt", a publication not registered as a newspaper, and one concerning the Fascist organization.

Also read was a portion of a letter which stated "The average Englishman and Canadian do not get along at all . . . We shall impose our will on those who will not come over with us."

Another excerpt stated that the "Post-war state of United States, Canada and Britain . . . will not surprise anyone."

"The French are keeping things stirred up at Ottawa."

Counsel for the defence wanted to know if there was evidence sufficiently strong enough to warrant a commitment, as Mr. Hawe ordered it. The crown, represented by Clifton G. Purvis, K. C., said that it was a serious matter and wanted to see the superior court take the responsibility.

Defence was reserved.

James Graham, who pleaded guilty to two charges of uttering forged documents on Wednesday, was sentenced Saturday morning by Magistrate Harold L. Hawe, K.C., to three months on each charge, terms to run concurrently and with hard labor, and to date from the time of his arrest.

Accused had been remanded from Wednesday until Saturday to enable him to make restitution to two Edmonton stores at which he tendered cheques and received goods and cash. A city detective told the court that he had learned that the accused had two or 'three days' pay coming to him, but that the latter would have to sign over the money, which he had not yet done.

Mr. Hawe asked the accused if he had passed under another name, and if he had been convicted in Calgary in June last for forgery, and had been placed on two years suspended sentence.

The prisoner admitted that he had used his mother's name, and acknowledged the Calgary conviction.

Ten charges of possession of stolen property, theft, theft of auto, preferred against Mike Rudyk, George Brayshaw, Albert Koch and Walter Powluk, were further remanded to Wednesday, Aug. 4, after the last named was permitted to withdraw his earlier plea of guilty and enter a plea of not guilty.

Five of the charges were against Rudyk, three against Brayshaw, and one each against Koch and Powluk. Powluk was granted bail of $1,000 with one or more sureties.

"Here, sir!" said George Lyon, one of four charged with intoxication, when the court called his name.

He was asked where he came from, and replied he was here from Brittania Beach on a holiday.

"You're a long way from home," observed the magistrate, as he found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $20 and costs or 30 days.

Maggie Coleman, who had "been here many times," pleaded not guilty to the intoxication charge. Found guilty she was assessed $20 and costs or 30 days.

A police constable told the court he had found the accused in the Canadian National park at 99 street and 104 avenue about 11:15 p.m. Friday. She was unable to talk, unable to walk. So she was taken to the stationhouse.

Maggie said she wasn't guilty and she would say nothing else, or more.

Two others were similarly dealt with.

49th Veterans Church Parade Set For Aug. 8

When men who fought in the ranks of the fighting 49th Bn. C.E.F. in the First Great War stage their annual church parade on Sunday, Aug. 8, the re-muster of the "old gang" will mean much to many a veteran.

Feelings of those members of the old battalion on this memorable occasion have probably been best expressed by Norman E. Cook, past vice-president of the 49th Battalion (Loyal Edmonton Regiment) Association and associate editor of the Forty-Niner magazine.

"This annual church parade means more to many a member of the old guard than one might think," said Mr. Cook.

"It provides an opportunity to quietly and reverently pay our respects to fallen comrades who made the supreme sacrifice during the last war and to those of our numbers who have passed on since.

STERN REALITIES

"Our annual get-together musters those who faced the stern realities of war, which very often taxed religious or spiritual beliefs of many. It is well, however, that we may still keep green, through the celebration of our church services, the memory of those whom we thus honor and esteem."

Sunday, Aug. 8 also marks the 25th anniversary of the great Battle of Amiens, in which the 49th covered itself with glory along with the other units of the famed Canadian Corps.

The church parade will fall in at the market square at 9:45 and parade to the Legislative Buildings for service at 10:30. Capt. E. T. Scragg, association chaplain will conduct the service.

Postmasters Meet

Executive members of the Canadian Postmasters' Association, Alberta branch, will open a two-day meeting at the Macdonald hotel Sunday at which matters pertaining to the good and welfare of the association will be discussed. The meeting will be under the chairmanship of D. Taylor, Vermilion, president, Alberta branch.

More Showers

After a warm sunny day Friday, the weather became a little unsettled toward evening. Clouds gathered in the sky and around midnight a heavy shower fell. Total precipitation was .03. The forecast for Saturday and Sunday, however, is "generally fair with not much change in temperature."

WITH THE ELIMINATION OF THE AXIS SPIES. U-BOATS, AND THEIR CREWS, PEACE SETTLES ONCE MORE ON "THE CASTLE"--- ---BUT FOR WARBUCKS AND HIS MEN, THERE IS NO PEACE, NOR WILL THERE BE UNTIL THIS WAR IS WON------
HOW DID YOU COME TO BRING PUNJAB AND TH' ASP AND WUN WEY AND CHUCK WITH YOU THIS TIME, "DADDY"?
OH, THEY'RE MEMBERS OF MY STAFF, ANNIE-
GEE! I'LL BET YOU'VE BEEN THROUGH A LOT O' FIGHTIN' TOGETHER-- HAVE YOU HAD ANY NARROW ESCAPES?
WELL, A FEW, ANNIE---BUT WE'RE STILL WELL AND CHIPPER-
YOU SAID YOU'RE HERE ON A MISSION- WHAT SORT OF A MISSION?
A SECRET MISSION- BUT IT WON'T KEEP US HERE VERY LONG-
YOU DON'T MEAN YOU'RE GOIN' BACK OUT THERE, DO YOU?
OF COURSE! THIS WAR ISN'T OVER YET, BY A LONG WAY-
O' COURSE NOT--I KNOW THAT--BUT ISN'T THERE SOMETHIN' 'PORTANT YOU COULD DO HERE AT HOME FOR A WHILE?
NOTHING AS IMPORTANT AS KILLING THE ENEMIES OF ALL WE BELIEVE IN HERE AT HOME-
BUT ALL YOUR MILLS AND FACTORIES- ISN'T MAKIN' TH' GUNS AN' TANKS AN SHIPS AN' OTHER STUFF AS 'PORTANT AS FIGHTIN'?
OF COURSE-- BUT I CHOSE TO FIGHT---YOU KNOW I TURNED OVER ALL MY BUSINESS TO THE, ER, GOVERNMENT-
BUT ARE YOUR FACTORIES MAKIN' AS MUCH STUFF NOW AS WHEN YOU RAN 'EM, PERSONALLY?
THEY SHOULD BE- AND I KNOW I'VE BEEN KILLING A LOT MORE JAPS, "PERSONALLY," THAN WHEN I RAN A FACTORY-
YOU SAY THIS MISSION WON'T KEEP YOU LONG--GEE--I WAS HOPIN' YOU'D STAY HERE--SO I-- ---WE---
I KNOW, ANNIE-- THIS WAR WON'T LAST FOREVER- THE HARDER WE ALL FIGHT, THE SOONER WE'LL HAVE PEACE-
PEACE! HOME---OUR LOVED ONES AGAIN---(THOSE WHO ARE LEFT)--MOVIES--CHURCH ON SUNDAYS--AN END TO RATIONING, (PERHAPS)--CERTAINLY THE RIGHT TO GO AND COME AND TO LIVE IN SECURITY, AND AS WE PLEASE-
8-1-43
WE'RE NOT FIGHTING FOR A NEW WORLD, ANNIE--NOT FOR A NEW WORLD FOR AMERICANS--WE'RE FIGHTING FOR THE WORLD WE'VE GROWN UP IN AND PROSPERED IN---FOR OUR OLD WORLD OF FREE AMERICA!
BUT IN THE MEANTIME, ANNIE--I'M GOING TO GET YOU AWAY FROM THIS SEA COAST, BEFORE YOU SNAG MORE THAN YOU CAN HANDLE--YES--SOME QUIET, INLAND TOWN--THAT'S THE PLACE FOR YOU-

DAVE MISSING AND I CAN'T FIND HIM ANYWHERE! IF HE FAILS TO SHOW UP TODAY, IT WILL BE JUST TOO BAD! I SUSPECT THERE MAY BE FOUL PLAY. THIS LOOKS LIKE A JOB FOR SUPERMAN!
THE MAN OF TOMORROW COVERS MILES IN MOMENTS – SEARCHING – QUESTIONING – BUT TO NO AVAIL....
HAVE YOU SEEN AN AIR CORPS STUDENT ANSWERING THAT DESCRIPTION?
NO!!
NO!
NO!
MEANWHILE....
YOU HAD BETTER SIGN THIS PAPER SAYING YOU'RE DESERTING THE ARMY AIR CORPS, OR THE RESULTS ARE BOUND TO BE SHOCKING!
I WON'T DO IT!
EYEGLASSES CALLING BERLIN VIA SHORT WAVE! CADET COOPER IS MY CAPTIVE – AND HE WILL EITHER SIGN THE DESERTION PAPER OR LEAVE MY PRESENCE A DEAD MAN!
NOTING INDICATIONS OF A POWERFUL RADIO SENDING SET NEARBY, SUPERMAN TUNES IN THE RADIO WAVES WITH HIS INCREDIBLE SUPER-SENSITIVE HEARING....
CADET COOPER IS MY CAPTIVE – HE WILL EITHER SIGN THE DESERTION PAPERS OR....
THE RADIO WAVES SEEM TO ORIGINATE FROM THAT TOWER!
THE HIGHER I TURN THE KNOB – THE GREATER THE AMOUNT OF ELECTRICITY COURSES THRU YOU! THE TINGLING SENSATION WILL SOON BE A VIBRATING NIGHTMARE – UNLESS YOU SIGN!
NO... IT CAN'T BE...
SUPERMAN!
YOU'LL BE SORRY!
